POLICY IN EFFECT TODAY.

About 20 Fall River Cotton Mills Curtail the Production.

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 7.—A pronounced curtailment policy went into effect today in 20 of the Fall River cotton mills controlled by ten or a dozen corporations. In many of the plain goods mills there has been a gradual tendency to decrease the output and some of them have adopted a schedule of four days a week. Today mills owned by the following companies are idle and will be stopped until Monday: American Linen, Chace, Flint, Davol, Mechanics, Merchants, Richard Borden, Seaconnet, Tecumseh, and Weetamoe.

The Ancona Mills close tonight until Monday. The mills which were operated but four days this week employ 7,000 persons and have nearly 750,000 spindles.

FIRST BOATLOAD LEAVES THE SHIP.

Work of Transferring the Passengers Begun.

Princess Irene Deeper Than When She Struck the Shoal.

LONE HILL SAVING STATION, Long Island, April 7.—In a choppy sea the trans-shipping of the 1,720 passengers on the stranded Princess Irene to noon in surfboats. The Prinz Frederick Wilhelm was undertaken this afternoon in surfboats. The Prinz Friderich was anchored about a mile off shore. The wind had veered into the northwest and this gave a bit of smooth sea to leeward of the Irene. The surfboats came alongside and approached the accommodation ladder of the forward part of the imprisoned liner.

Passengers lined the steamship's rails and gave a modest cheer as the officers and deck men assisted the first boatload of women to their places in the surf boats. As the lifeboats swung away a wave slapped the side of the boat, sending a shower of spray over the shipwrecked passengers, but beyond a chilly drenching no damage was done.

At 1 o'clock a surfboat bearing 15 women left the Irene's lee side and headed away for relief ship Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm. The sea was found to be running too high for the lifeboats with the passengers in transit to make the trip to the Prinz Wilhelm safely. The lifeboats consequently ran alongside tug Timmons, on the lee side of the Irene, and put their passengers on board the tug. She left the Irene with er first load at 2:19 o'clock. The Timmons made the run of about a mile separating the Irene from the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm in 10 minutes, and at 2:29 p. m. made fast to the Wilhelm and prepared to unload her passengers.

The Irene rolls slightly in the sea and is deepr in the sand than when she struck the shoal in the fog yesterday. A breeches buoy connects the steamship with the shore, while three life saving crews with oilskins and boots stand by the life saving boats on shore.

Near the Irene are revenue cutters Seneca and Mohawk, with a little fleet of tugs waiting to aid in the transshipping of the passengers. A smart northwester this morning stirred up a nasty sea and the life saving crews thought that unless the wind and water moderated it would be dangerous to transfer the passengers. There is no fear for their safety. Captain George E. Goddard of the Long Hill Life Saving Station spent all last night on board the Irene and came ashore this morning in the station surf boat. "I had a long talk with Captain Petersen of the Irene," said Captain Goddard soon after he came ashore, "and he was at a loss to explain how he ever got ashore. He told me that he had been sounding regularly and the last sounding showed 18 fathoms. The next he knew the Irene was on the sand spit.

"There was and is not now the slightest sign of panic or excitement among the passengers. They have eaten their meals regularly and have been entertained by band concerts. Even in the ladies' cabin there were no signs of fear and I observed several persons sitting about reading and playing whist. The steerage passengers were restless, but not panicky."

The Irene looks like an immense spider in a web of tow lines which radiated from her stem and stern to the bobbing fleet of revenue cutters and tugs. Near noon, as the tide began to flood strongly, her big propellers began churning the sea, while the tugs strained laboriously to free the steamship. The sands, however, held the big ship fast.

An accommodation ladder has been let down on the lee side of the Irene, down which the passengers will be taken to the boats for transfer to the Prinz Friedrich. Captain Charles Baker of the Point of Woods life saving station said at noon that the northwest wind "sounds good to me, as it will knock down and flatten out the ground swell."

"The position of the Irene," said Captain Baker," is about the same as last night, though she has worked in shore a little more. She is embedded in the sand, I think, from stem to stern, and for this reason I don't think she will spring a leak."

An agent of the North German Lloyd line boarded the Princess Irene today.

The life savers were busy during the morning in preparation for transferring the passengers. Later Captain Roorke returned that Captain Petersen was planning to transfer some of the passengers as soon as the Prinz Friedrich arrived. There are about five of six hours of working time in which to trans-ship 2,010 persons—235 cabin passengers, 1,485 steerage and 380 of the crew. The magnitude of the task appears when it is remembered that it took eight hours to transfer the 800 passengers of sinking steamer Republic. No passengers will be risked in small boats at night, as both prudence and admiralty laws forbid.

Knots of spectators along shore observed many of the passengers on the Irene calmly pacing the decks this afternoon. Captain Roorke said there was not the slightest evidence of any strain on the steamship.

STEAMER FAST IN SANDS.

The Princess Irene Off Fire Island Beach Aided by Sister Ship.

NEW YORK, April 7.—In practically the same position in which she suddenly found herself while groping through the fog yesterday, daylight today disclosed the big North German Lloyd steamer Princess Irene stuck fast in the sands off Fire Island beach. Her 1,720 passengers could see to the leeward the life savers, who had been patrolling the beach all night. To seaward were great swells, which an increasing wind was piling higher and higher in threatening onslaught against the ship's broadside. Whether safety rested with the big tugs, which still remained on the scene ready to have another pull at the steamer today, whether in transfer to a sistership

SEACONNET RIVER GROUNDS EXEMPTED

Oyster Fisheries Bill, After a Sharp Debate, Passed.

No Special Provision for Newport in Districting Act

[Special despatch to The News.]

PROVIDENCE, April 7.—After their sizzling on the griddron at the press dinner yesterday, the members of the legislature settled down and did a good bit of business today. The womans suffrage bill came out of committee, but without recommendation, while the act to abolish the property qualification for voters was reported in a new dress, providing an educational test. The drinking cup question was put up in form for the health authorities to handle. The voting district act was passed as reported by the committee, without special provision for Newport, and Newport's Board of Health was given authority to appoint a milk inspector. A license commission was asked for the town of Warwick and the State House Commission received $32,000 for its use.

The feature of the day in the house was the debate on the oyster fisheries bill, the substitute act being finally passed. Mr. Sullivan made quite an oration, and he as well as others spoke plainly as to conditions. It was represented that the bill meant much to Newport county as there, the free fishermen have their living at stake.

Mr. Gardner of Portsmouth said there are valuable quahaug beds in the Seaconnet river, from which many of his constituents derive a considerable portion of their living. If they were leased to the oyster men they would be planted over with oysters and the free fishermen would be held at bay and be derived of this means of a livelihood. The act as it was before the house, he said, would prevent this tute of affairs. Mr. H. K. Littlefield, who has been in the fight with Mr. Gardner, agreed to what had been stated.

Mr. Eaton of Providence said the matter was of great importance and moved that it be referred to the finance committee for further investigation. The motion was lost.

Mr. Sullivan made a long speech, charging that the shellfish commission with its support of the oyster industry was driving out of business the free dishermen in his part of the state. He said the commission had already leased and turned over to the oyster trust many locations and that the trust is now advertising that it owns thousands of acres of oyster grounds in Rhode Island. He questioned the legality of these leases, claiming that the state is invaded by non-residents, while the law provides that the leases shall be to residents. The only opposition to the bill is from corporate interests, and it seemed as if there was an effort to take away even more from the free fisherman than has already been taen. It is admitted that the leased grounds are worth $125,000 annually to the trust, but from what he could learn from those who should know they are in reality worth $500,000 a year. He charged that the commission is partial to the trust interests and not disposed to give the free fisherman and the residents of the state a square deal.

Mr. Gardner, gaining the floor again, stated that he hunted about the State House from corner to corner and could nowhere fing opposition to the present bill except from the shellfish commission. Its members are now trying to pose as favoring giving the fishermen more than they asked and this made him suspicious.

Mr. Balkcom of East Providence, a member of the commission, said that last year quahaugs were selling for $2 a bushel and this year for $4. He thought it a shame to put blocks in the way of the fishermen.

The act exempting the Seaconnet river grounds was then passed. It also fails to provide for an expensive, patrol yacht, as originally arranged in the bill of the shellfish commission.

In the senate Senator Mowry of South Kingstown introduced an act which provides that the state shall insure itself against fire by setting aside $5,000 a year until the sum of $150,000 is placed in a fund to pay for any fire damage which may be done to state buildings. Referred to the finance committe.

Mr. Monroe, for the committee on judiciary, reported back a substitute to the bill on Bertill on measurements, which provides that the police may take measurements and pictures, but must destroy them if the prisoner is not convicted. Calendar.

Senator Sanborn, for the same committee, submitted a substitute for the drinking cup act, making it mandatory for companies to provide a supply of water but leaving it to the Board of Health to decide as to cups. Calendar.

Senator Gorton, for the same committee, reported the act which requires that certified accountants of savings banks shall be residents of the state. Calendar.

The acts for an inland waterway commission and increasing the terms of justices of the peace and notaries to three years were reported and placed on the calendar.

In the house acts providing $500 for the North End dispensary, $5,700 for the Rhode Island Institute for the Deaf, and for the transfer of a part of ward 6 to ward 4 in Central Falls, were reported favorably.

Unfavorable report was made on the woman suffrage bill and the committee on special legislation submitted a substitute bill on the property qualification question.

Mr. Reddy of Warwick submitted an act providing a license commission for that town, which was referred to the judiciary committee.

The voting district bill, as reported by the committee, was passed without remarks by either Mr. Franklin or Mr. Sullivan, of Newport, and against the amendment of Mr. Hughes, who sought certain changes for Providence and Pawtucket.

Bills were passed paying John Lahey for his ice lost in Bristol, empowering the Newport Board of Health to appoint a milk inspector, and a number of private corporation acts.

An act was also passed prohibiting misrepresentation by insurance companies and agents to secure business, and amendments to acts on quail, ferrets, weasles, hares, grey squirrels and deer.

ANOTHER HALT IN CAMORRIST TRIAL.

Accused Priest Faints From Self-Imposed Fast.

Vitozzi Says Judge's Action Was Cowardly and Inhuman.

VITERBO, Italy, April 7.—Again today the trial of the Camorrists was interrupted when Ciro Vitozzi, the accused priest, weakened by self-imposed fast, fainted. He was under interrogation and had worked himself into a state of mental and physical exhaustion until he tumbled over against the steel bars of the prisoners' cage. Lawyers rushed to his assistance and in the confusion President Bianchi declared the sitting suspended. At the same time the court ordered Vitozzi to break his fast with the yolks of half a dozen eggs.

The climax came opportunely for Vitozzi, following his declaration that he had abstained from food for 48 hours. He had been telling a story of his alleged persecution in prison and the recital was not without dramatic effect. "With me in my cell," said the priest, "I had a lock of hair from the head of that holy soul, my mother. This was taken from me upon the order of a magistrate, who insisted that hair was that of some woman companion of mine. What nonsense! Why it was even gray! Can any one imagine a greater profanation?"

Here the accused man invoked the soul of his mother in support of his statement, and the recollection of what he described as the insults to her memory overwhelming him, he was seized with a fit of weeping. Between his sobs he cried out, "I have been fasting for 48 hours, supported during my whole interrogation by divine power." He then collapsed.

Giovanni Rapi was not present when the trial was resumed this morning. His physician certified that he was suffering from a sore throat, as a result of having "cried too much during his interrogation." The proceedings opened with the recall of Vitozzi. The prisoner described attempts which he said had been made to make him appear guilty of complicity in the murder of Gennaro Cuoccolo and his wife. While he was in prison he said he was confronted with a man he did not know, who offered him $20.00 to denounce certain persons guilty of the Cuoccolo assassinations, adding that if it were necessary he would send the priest to America, as Briccne had been sent. The prisoner said that during his preliminary examination Judge Delilla had insulted him, calling him a "Camorrist pig." "This," said Vitozzi, "was cowardly, savage and inhuman, while the judge ought to represent honesty."

Urging the priest to calm himself, President Bianchi inquired whether he knew Gennaro Abbatemaggio, the informer.

"No," replied Vitozzi, who added, "All the statements of Abbatemaggio are false. I will ask him to swear on the ashes of his father and on the ashes of his dead son, hoping that he will be touched."

At this thrust Abbatemaggio, who had listened calmly from his solitary cage, broke his usual impassibility of manner and replied "I will swear on anything you please."

Enraged Vitozzi turned upon his accuser and cried, "I will curse you down to the seventh generation."

"I am sorry for you," rejoined the informer.

At this the priest suddenly changed his tactics and in a voice filled with pathos said, "No, I will not curse you. I remember that I am a priest and must pardon even those who injure me. I wish to take you to my bosom."

In the same emotional strain Vitozzi continued with the reference to his mother's gray hairs until he was overcome and the proceedings halted.

RATE WAR ENDS.

New Hampshire and Boston & Maine Reach Agreement.

CONCORD, N. H., April 6.—The long controversy between the state and the Boston & Maine railroad over the rate question is believed to have been temporarily ended by the passage today by the house of the bill legalizing until July 1, 1913, existing railroad rates in New Hampshire. On a reputed understanding that the railroad would not contest its provisions, the measure was adopted by a vote of 229 to 27.

It is believed by the supporters of the bill that the senate will endorse the action taken by the house and that the differences between the state and the company will be settled finally by the commission which is provided for.

The bill is the result of the work of the special committee on railroad rates which investigated complaints made by shippers that the Boston & Maine Railroad had raised some of its rates above the maximum which the road agreed to maintain in compacts entered into with the state as far back as 1883 and 1889.

In the bill passed today by the house the rates as they stand are to be legalized until July 1, 1913, before which time it is provided the public service commission shall make an investigation and ruling as to how far if at all the railroad has exceeded its legal rights. Shippers are then to have a right to demand and receive rebates for all excessive charges. The bill gives to the railroad no right of appeal to the courts from the ruling of the commission except in specific cases.

MORMONS RENOUNCE POLYGAMY

President Smith Desirous That Congress Shall Regulate Marriages.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 6.—The position of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints on marriage was reiterated today by President Joseph F. Smith, in his sermon opening the eighty-first annual conference of the Mormon Church. He said:

"We ought to obey the rule of the church with regard to marriage. As announced repeatedly at these conferences, plural marriages have ceased in the church. There is no man authorized to perform a plural marriage. We have been doing all in our power to stop this.

"With respect to the idea proposed by some, to induce the Congress of the United States to amend the constitution so as to give the federal government power to regulate plural marriage, so far as I am concerned I have no objection to such an amendment. Neither has any other Latter Day Saint. Let the state petition the national Congress to regulate the whole subject of marriage in the United States, and it will be a godsend to people everywhere."

President Smith announced that during the year just closed there was only one divorce to each 5,000 church membership, as compared with one divorce for each 1,100 persons in the United States. He denounced the apparently growing tendency among church members, as well as in the country at large, to patronize plays of a vulgar and demoralizing character.

ENTIRELY NEW COUNCIL.

Sweeping Changes Made at Annual Little Compton Town Meeting.

An entirely new town council was elected at the annual town meeting in Little Compton, when every member of the old board was defeated by from seven to nine votes. There were also changes in some of the other offices, and the men who had no opposition were lucky.

The new town council consists of the following: No. 1, William O. Snell, who defeated Frederick R. Brownell; No. 2, George T. Howard, defeating Ernest L. Manchester; No. 3, Edwin A. Cornell, against Mark A. Brownell; No. 4, Frederick L. Sherman, who defeated Charles W. F. Humphrey; and No. 5, Lester E. Wilbur, defeating Herman J. Gray.

John B. Taylor, the present town clerk, and Philip H. Wilbour, town treasurer and collector of taxes, were re-elected without opposition.

For surveyors of highways, the results by districts were as follows: No. 1, Alexander Stewart; Carton, Jr., defeated Charles W. F. Humphrey, the present incumbent; No. 2, Alexander Kelley was elected without opposition; No. 3, Henry Athington, elected without opposition; No. 4, George H. Wilbur, defeated George H. Case; No. 5, Frederick A. H. Bodington, a new man, was elected without opposition; No. 6, Ellis B. Wilbur, the present incumbent, defeated Milton H. Wordell.

For town sergeant, Edward W. Pearce, the present incumbent, defeated Lester A. Seabury. The present overseers of the poor, William H. Briggs and Abel B. Simmons, and the board of assessors, William O. Snell, Edwin A. Cornell and George T. Howard, were re-elected.

On the fourth article of the call, to appropriate a certain sum of money to be expended on the highways at the discretion of the town council, when equal amounts are contributed for the same purpose, the usual vote was passed appropriating $500 or so much as may be necessary. This action is taken every year, to avoid carrying over small amounts.

Flora A. Darlington was elected a member of the school committee for three years.

The article relative to making an appropriation to enforce the law relative to fast driving of motor vehicles on the town's highways was carried by a close vote, 47 to 42, and $200 appropriated.

On the seventh article, to see if the town would provide a more adequate place for the public library and make an appropriation therefor, Philip H. Wilbour, Joshua B. Richmond, Abraham Manchester, Frank A. Jackson and James W. Coombs were appointed a committee to consider the matter and report at a subsequent meeting. No appropriation was made.

Under the eighth article $125 was appropriated for the public library.

It was voted to move the No. 1 schoolhouse to a more suitable location, and John A. Seabury, Herbert A. Grinnell and Henry I. Richmond were appointed a committee. One thousand dollars was appropriated.

The tax rate was made the same as in former years, 70 cents on each $100 of taxable property in the town. It was voted that a discount of five per cent be allowed on all taxes paid on or before November 25, that between November 25 and December 1 they be received at par, that after December 1 interest be charged at the rate of 12 per cent, and that all taxes remaining unpaid after April 1, 1912, be collected in the manner provided by law.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

TEST CASE OF MILK RULES.

Supreme Court Finds That Boston's Board of Health Has Exceeded Its Authority.

The board of health of Boston exceeded its statutory authority when it made a regulation that after May 1, 1910, all milk sold or offered for sale should be kept in tightly closed or capped bottles, according to a decision handed down by the supreme court of Massachusetts. The rule barred the so-called "dip tanks" from which milk was sold in stores, and the test case came up with the arrest and fining in the lower court of William F. Drew for failure to comply with the board's rules.

On an appeal of the case Chief Justice Knowlton handed down a decision after allowing the full bench to consider it. The chief justice stated that the statute was not broad enough to warrant the board of health in making such general regulations and that the dealer had not so conducted his business as to make it a "nuisance, source of filth or cause for sickness," under which conditions the board might have acted within its powers.

AN EASTER LUNCHEON.

Decorate Cakes with Pistachio Candy Peas and Mint Leaves.

Directions for Two Salad Dressings for Those Who Dislike Flavor of Olive Oil.

[Cornelia C. Bedford.]

Cream of Lettuce Soup.
Halibut Croquilles, Cucumber Sandwiches.
Sweetbread and Mushroom Cutlets.
Whipped Potatoes. Carrots
Egg Salad.
Wafers. Cheese.
Orange Delirante. Pistachio Cakes.
Coffee.

As a number of the dishes can be wholly or partly prepared on the preceding day we will begin preliminaries by making the cutlet mixture and as the luncheon is presumably for six persons, we will need three good sweetbreads, two hearts and one throat bread. Drop these into cold water, changing it repeatedly until the breads look white, then drain. Place in a saucepan wit hont half of a teaspoonful of salt and a strip of green pepper, cover with boiling water and simmer for 20 minutes. Transfer to a bowl of cold water and let stand until chilled then dry and cut fine with a silver knife. In the meantime peel one quarter of a pound of fresh mushrooms, cut caps and stems quite fine, place in a saucepan with three tablespoonfuls of butter, cover and cook slowly without coloring for 15 minutes. Stir in three heaping tablespoonfuls of flour, then add gradually one cupful and a hal fof rich milk. Stir and cook until the sauce is smooth and thick, then add the prepared sweetbreads and salt and pepper to taste and cook for five minutes longer. Add one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, spread on a buttered plate and put aside.

Order a slice of halibut, weighing one pound and a half. Wash it, place in a deep frying pan, add one half of a blade of mace, a bit of bay leaf, a scant teaspoonful of salt, a slice of onion and a stalk of celery, cover with boiling water and simmer gently until the fish begins to separate from the bones. Lift from the pan when cool, remove skin and bones and break into flakes.

For the dessert scald one cupful of cream and pour it over the beaten yolks of three eggs, carefully cook over hot water until the mixture thickens to a soft custard. In a second saucepan boil together two cupfuls of granulated sugar and one cupful of water until the syrup will spin a short thread when dropped from the tines of a fork. Take from the fire and pour slowly into the custard, beating well; add one cupful and a half of strained orange juice and put away to chill over night.

As a filling for the sandwiches cook together one tablespoonful of butter and one heaping tablespoonful of flour, add slowly one scant cupful of milk and stir until thick and smooth. Cook for five minutes, take from the fire, add one eighth of a teaspoonful of mustard rubbed to a paste with one tablespoonful of vinegar, one large cucumber pared and grated and salt and pepper to season highly.

For the pistachio cakes beat up three eggs with four ounces of granulated sugar till light, then sift in four ounces of flour and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Add one teaspoonful of pistachio extract and divide into buttered and floured square cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven for 12 or 15 minutes, then turn out and cool. Cover with white icing and decorate with pistachio candy peas in pods, and mint leaves.

It is well to prepare in advance, a pint or more of fine dry bread crumbs.

Next morning whip three cupfuls of thick cream to a solid froth and keep on ice until needed. Pack the freezer, using two parts of ice to one of fine rock salt. Pour the prepared orange mixture into the freezing can and turn or work (according to the kind of freezer you have) until the mixture is thick but not hard. Add one pint of the whipped cream, working it in thoroughly with a long paddle or spoon, then finish the freezing. Repack the freezer and set aside until ready to use. This should be done fully three hours before the luncheon is served.

Butter the little shells or dishes in which the fish is to be baked. In a saucepan put one tablespoonful and a half of butter, one tablespoonful and a half of flour, one half of a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of white pepper. Stir over the fire until mixed, then add one cupful of rich milk and four tablespoonfuls of the broth in which the fish was cooked. Stir until smooth and thick, then add 10 drops of onion juice and the fish and take from the fire. Add more seasoning if needed. In five minutes stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs and fill the buttered dishes. Sprinkle each with crumbs mixed with a few drops of melted butter. Stand the dishes on flat pans. At the proper time they are baked in a hot oven for 12 minutes.

Spread the dry crumbs on a board or plate. Break an egg into a saucer, add one tablespoonful of warm water and with a fork beat just enough to break the stringiness. Take up the sweetbread mixture by spoonfuls and mold into cutlets either by hand or by the aid of a greated and crumbed mold. Dip each as turned out into the egg mixture, turning it to make sure that it is thoroughly coated. Lift up and drain for an instant, then roll in the crumbs. As finished place side by side on a board or dish, do not pile on one another. Have ready a deep saucepan or small kettle containing sufficient fat to ensure submerging the cutlets. When ready for frying the fat should be so hot that a thin blue smoke rises from the centre as well as the sides of the kettle. By the time each cutlet is nicely browned it is done; not more than three should be cooked at once. When brown drain for a moment on ordinary brown paper. The sauce for this dish calls for one tablespoonful of butter and one tablespoonful of butter and one tablespoonful of flour cooked together without browning, one half of a cupful of boiling water in which is dissolved one half of a teaspoonful of beef extract, one half of a cupful of thin cream and seasoning to taste.

There are many who dislike the flavor of olive oil and for such we give two dressings, one of them cooked. Take a cupful of thick cream, either sweet or slightly sour—if the former allow two tablespoonfuls of vinegar or lemon juice, if the latter half as much. Whip the cream to a solid froth, season it with salt and pepper. Gradually beat in the acid. This is especially good with a veal, sweetbread or mixed vegetable salad. For the cooked dressing beat two eggs enough to mix thoroughly. Stir in one half of a cupful of warm water, one half of a teaspoonful of salt, one third of a teaspoonful of white pepper or a dash of cayenne and four tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Stir in a double boiler over a moderate fire until very thick. Lifting the upper boiler several times that the contents may not thicken too rapidly. Add, when beginning to thicken, two large tablespoonfuls of butter. Rub all through a sieve and when cool cover and set away. This, as well as the mayonnaise, can be diluted by the addition of whipped or plain cream.

Almost all meats and vegetable salads are improved by a suspicion of onion or garlic and the best way of using the later is to cut a clove of garlic (the bulb of garlic is separated in a number of divisions called cloves) and rub the salad bowl or dish with the cut side. A method greatly in vogue in France is to cut a thick slice or cube of stale bread free from crust, rub it well with a cut clove of garlic and place it in the salad bowl, removing it when the salad is served. For many salads, especially vegetable, onion juice may be added but chopped or cut raw onions should never be used unless it is known that all at the table like it, the flesh of the raw onion being extremely repugnant to many persons.

Meats and vegetables which have been cooked are improved in flavor if marinated some time before they are served. Marinate means to mix with enough French dressing to slightly moisten; this gives them an added flavor. When mayonnaise is also to be used any surplus amount of the thinner mixture should be drained off before the salad receives its finishing touches.

Chicken is by no means the only meat fit for salad use though it is about the only kind mentioned by many people when a meat salad is suggested. That may do for receptions, etc., but the true economy of the salad in every day living is that it can and does utilize many odd bits too small to present at the table in other guise. A small piece of cooked fish with some appropriate vegetable such as cucumber and a few lettuce leaves, can be so mingled with a mayonnaise or some French dressing that the result is a dish satisfactory alike to eye and taste. Cold boiled beef neatly diced, marinated with a French dressing, mixed with shredded lettuce and sprinkled with horse radish will make a substantial luncheon dish while a half cupful each of several kinds of cooked vegetables served in cucumber cups will add much to a supper.

Dinner salads should be of a light nature and, for the most part, consist of the fresh green salad plants, such as lettuce, field salad, escarole or watercress, simply prepared with a French dressing. As a variation a spoonful or two of finely chopped herbs sprinkled over with the dressing, is both popular and good; parsley, chervil, chives and tarragon are the herbs generally used.

Many decorative and tasty sweet salads can be prepared with fruit. The grape fruit salad is a favorite. After halving and removing the seeds the fruit is carefully scooped out of the rind, all inner skin removed and the pulp returned, dressed either with a French dressing or a sweet wine dressing. Each half is served on a bed of lettuce leaves. Another popular fruit and nut salad is composed of finely cut celery and tart apple mixed with boiled English walnuts and a French dressing and served in cups made of whole red apples.

NEW THEATRE UNSUCCESSFUL.

Outworking of Promising Scheme in New York a Disappointment From Its Inception.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]

The New Theatre in New York has lost $400,000 for its founders in two seasons, and the magnificent temple of the arts which has been maintained at a ruinous cost by the New Theatre Company will be for rent next season to any manager who may wish to use it.

The idea of the New Theatre was hailed initially with enthusiasm by those who had long been pleading for a fair chance for the American playwright and the presentation of dramas of domestic rather than exotic origin. The theatre was expected to be a playhouse which would be hospitable to the sort of plays which appeal to the cultured minority rather than those which frankly make a bid for the suffrages of the gallery—though no play would be rejected merely because it was likely to prove financially successful. From the first the directors—men of great wealth—have spent money fruitlessly to make the experiment a success—and that it was a success from the artistic point of view there can be no question.

But the money went largely to the wrong side of the footlights. It was lavishly expended upon the creation of a sumptuous environment for the play-goer. It did not seem to be the maxim of those who provided the magnificent surroundings that the play was the thing—the play itself might visually prove the anti-climax after the eye had been surfeited with the bronze and marble, the almost priceless woodwork and sumptuous upholstery of the auditorium.

The outworking of the very promising scheme, almost from its inception, has been a disappointment. The New Theatre has not done what it was intended it should do and hoped it would do. It has required a prodigious outlay for the upkeep and the company has been unable to fill the house except with extraordinary attractions like the performances of the Russian dancers.

In a more modest building, less elaborately equipped, a company of first-rate actors in first-rate plays might have made the New Theatre a profitable venture. It is a melancholy declension from the high ideals of the founders to the prospective use of the beautiful auditorium for ballet performances and vaudeville; and it seems a descent to baser uses that might by forethought have been averted.

ELECTRIC ANTS.

[John Muir, in The Atlantic.]

When you happen to sit down to rest or take notes near a colony of ants some wandering hunter is sure to find you and come cautiously forward to discover the nature of the intruder and what ought to be done. If you are not too near the town and keep perfectly still he may run across your feet a few times, over your legs and hands and face, up your trousers, as if taking your measure and getting comprehensive views, then go in peace without raising an alarm. If, however, a tempting spot is offered or some suspicious movement excites him, a bite follows, and such a bite! I fancy that a bear or wolf bite is not to be compared with it.

A quick electric flame of pain flashes along the outraged nerves, and you discover for the first time how great is the capacity of sensation you are possessed of. A shriek, a grab for the animal, and a bewildered stare follow this bite of bites as one comes back to consciousness from sudden eclipse. Fortunately, if careful, one need not be bitten oftener than once or twice in a lifetime. This wonderful electric ant is about three fourths of an inch long. Bears are fond of them, and tear and gnaw their homelogs to pieces and roughly devour the eggs, larvae, parent ants and the rotten or sound wood of the cells, all in one spicy, acid hash. The Digger Indians are also fond of the larvae and even of the perfect ants, so I have been told by old mountaineers. They bite off and reject the head and eat the prickly, acid body with keen relish. Thus are the poor biters bitten, like every other biter, big or little, in the world's great family.

SPRING.

[Margaret E. Sangster in Christian Herald.]

When Spring comes tripping gaily in,
Adorned with blossoms bright,
You'd think the work kept holiday
From morning until night.
But 'tis not so, my friend, you know
'Tis Nature's busiest time,
And she's at work, and not at play,
And all through April and through May
Thinks idleness a crime.

The Spring with dashing crystal shower,
With shaft of golden sun,
Is laboring her every hour
Until her course is run.
She weaves the greening forest roofs
Of lovely shining leaves,
And deep beneath the earth her elves
Are toiling to surpass themselves
For future Autumn sheaves.

When Spring takes up her urgent work
She carries it like play,
And of her busiest time, my dear,
She makes a holiday.
So you and I may learn of her,
And gaily take the road,
And with a blithe and buoyant heart
Bear on our heaviest load.

FANCIES.

"He has plenty of horse sense."
"Why so?"
"He never bets on one."

"Do you know anything about palmistry?"
"No, but I can hold hands without an excuse."

"Some men," said Uncle Eben, "is so matchedly contrary dat de only day dey feels like gittin' out an' doin' a day's work is Sunday."—[Washington Star.

Nell—Men are such helpless things. Belle—Yes, they can't even fall in love without a good bit of assistance.—[Philadelphia Record.

Reggy—Y'know my uncle is just like me; making witty remarks half the time.
Peggy—Sort of half-witted, is he?

"Bank saved that woman's life from the undertow, and then she married him."
"Yes, and she found out that she was all he ever did save."

"Does your husband find fault with the cooking?" asked the patient-looking woman.
"No," replied Mrs. Crossbots. "He did so just once—and the cook happened to overhear him."—[Washington Star.

Lady—I must ask you to take back that parrot I bought some time ago. He shocks all my friends by his dreadful language.
Fancier—Ah, you've got to be careful how you talk before 'im. 'E's terrible quick to learn!—[London Opinion.

"You have kept my nose to the grindstone, Serepta," spoke her husband, nerving himself to say something at last, "for 15 years!"
"I've done more than that, Volney," snapped Mrs. Vick-Senn. "I have made you turn the grindstone."—[Chicago Tribune.

DRUNK ON THE STREET AT 102.

A man 102 years old was arraigned before Judge Fallon in Boston this week, charged with drunkenness. He looked as strong as any of the other prisoners in the police court dock. When he answered "Not guilty" to the charge his voice was as firm as that of a man of 40. The patrolman who arrested him said, "I found him helpless in the gutter. He was very drunk." The prisoner offered no defense. He stated that he had no relatives or a place that he could call home, and was sent to the state farm.

PERSONALS.

....Andrew Carnegie has declined to become chairman of a proposed united association of all organizations now working for an arbitration treaty between this country and Great Britain. He believes that it is wiser to allow the United States Senate to deliberate on the form of a treaty unprompted.

....It is announced from London that W. W. Astor who owns the Pall Mall Gazette, has acquired The Observer.

....After an illness of about a year, Henry Franklin Miller, a well known manufacturer of pianos, died in Brookline, of heart trouble. He was president of the Henry F. Miller & Sons Piano Company, a past president of the National Piano Manufacturers' Association, and was prominent in banking and Masonic circles. He was born in Providence in 1848 and is survived by a widow, one daughter, two sisters and two brothers, the latter being associated with him in the manufacture of pianos.

....George Franklin Haley, who has been appointed a justice of the supreme court of Maine, was not many years ago working for small pay in a saw mill. He never graduated from the grammar school, being forced to leave to earn his living when quite young. From the sawmill he went to a cotton mill, later becoming foreman of a cigar factory, studying law in the meantime, borrowing books of a friend and reading night after night until the early hours. Since being admitted to the bar he has been counsel in a number of important trials. The only public office he ever held was that of city solicitor of Saco, and that he resigned after serving one week.

....The will of W. T. Myers, written on a shipping tag attached to a filled trunk, has been admitted by the Los Angeles probate court. It was dated November 19, 1910, and reads as follows: "At my death this trunk and its contents I bequeath to my friend, Mrs. Mary W. White at San Miguel, Cal." The trunk contained wearing apparel, silver spoons and other articles of small value. The court held that the cardboard slip, discovered quite by accident after Myers's death, January 16, 1911, was effective to dispose of the contents of the trunk. The remainder of Myers's property, valued at about $2,000, was not affected by the cardboard will and will pass to his son.

"ME— SMITH."

Unusually Interesting Romance of the Far West, Written by Caroline Lockhart.

"Me—Smith," by Caroline Lockhart, is a story of the far West. Indians, half-breeds, cattlemen and outlaws all go to make a picturesque setting of the free, unconventional life of the plains. Murders are committed in cold blood and there is death by slow torture, but there are pleasanter pictures than these, and the reader will thoroughly enjoy the book. It is an exceptionally good story of the West, being more natural and convincing than many such tales. The author writes whereof she knows, and her characters are not mere puppets, but live men and women.

Smith, or, as he likes to call himself, "Me—Smith," is the bad man of the plains. He knows neither sympathy nor compassion, has neither any moral sense nor any idea of the sacredness of human life. On the other hand, he is clever, resourceful, daring, leading a charmed life. Always having escaped punishment for his crimes, sometimes by a narrow margin, he believes that no turn of fortune can ever down or destroy him. Therefore he blithely goes his reckless way. The author shows her skill in drawing this man true to life and reaping the inevitable results of his course. There is none of that mawkish sentimentality which spoils many an otherwise good story by its unnaturalness.

Dora Marshall, the schoolmarm, is an attractive young woman, who tries to reform the redoubtable Smith. Her inexperience blinds her to the real nature of the man, and her experiment ends disastrously. Susie MacDonald, the half-breed, suspects Smith at once. With keen intuition, she feels that he is staying at her mother's ranch for no lawful purpose. Susie's impudence angers the man, but he is no match for her sharp tongue. This 16-year-old girl plays a game of her own in her dealings with him. Although unfriendly to Smith, Susie has a kindly feeling for Peter McArthur, "bachelor," a gentle, mild-mannered man, who discourses learnedly on mammalian life, to the mental confusion of his cowboy auditors. McArthur has need of a friend, and Susie is his loyal protector. Dick Ralston, a deputy sheriff, plays an important part in the proceedings, taking up his abode at the MacDonald ranch, where all strangers are welcome, and which shelters an oddly assorted household, from Mrs. MacDonald herself, a full-blooded Indian, to Ling, the Chinese cook.

There are several illustrations, with a frontispiece in color, by Gayle Hoskins.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Newport Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.
Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault.
Backache is really kidney ache;
That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Newport women know this.
Read what one has to say about it.

Mrs. A. P. Freeborn, 15 Caleb Earl St., Newport, R. I., says: "I was distressed almost constantly by backache and often it seemed as if my back were going to break. I felt worse in the morning when I arose and during the day I was all tired out. I could hardly get up or down stairs at times on account of the misery in my back. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Wright & Hay's Drug Store, acted like magic and the use of two boxes did me a wonderful amount of good. The backache was relieved, my kidneys were strengthened and there was a noticeable improvement in my health. Nothing affords me greater pleasure than to give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement."

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.

The Daily News is on sale in Providence the evening of publication at Union Station and at the Rhode Island News Company, 50½ Weybosset street.

TWELVE PAGES.

NEWPORT'S HIGH WATER RATES.

The great pecuniary advantage which would accrue to this city if the municipality owned the water system, instead of a private corporation controlling it and fixing its own rates, is emphatically shown by the fact that in Providence, where the figures have long or always been much below those charged here, the city has announced that at the beginning of next year the price for an ordinary house for a year will be reduced from $10 to $8. In order for a fair understanding of what this means in comparison with this city, it should be stated that in Providence the water is sold by meter and not by the faucet or other piece of mechanism, and it matters not to the city how many faucets, sinks, set bowls or closets there are in a house and in use, that being a question for the owner and the plumber to determine and not the water seller. Thus a house in Providence which is now charged $10 may have several times as many outlets for the water as one in this city where the cost is considerably more. Yet in the former case it has been found that at the price of $10 for a whole house the city is making so much money on its water system that it is proposed to reduce the price one fifth.

"That the same percentage of financial success would attend municipal ownership of the water system in Newport is not necessarily to be argued from this comparison, but it is evident that the people would have water much more cheaply if the city owned the plant than they now have it under private ownership. It is inconceivable that the conditions can be so far different as to make the cost of furnishing water so much more here than in Providence as to warrant so great a discrepancy in price. The result of the conditions in Providence under municipal ownership is that the water bill is a mere incident in the expenses of the house owner, while in this city it is so large an item that it must be reckoned with in all estimates of household expenses for the year. That Newport ought to have lower water rates seems indisputable in the light of the figures quoted in Providence, where money is made by the city on the system at the low charge of $10 a year.

ANOTHER RAILROAD BATTLE.

There is evidently to be another railroad war in the General Assembly before the present session ends. Last year one of the most important measures before the legislature was the bill to charter the Southern New England road, behind which was the Grand Trunk, and one of the hardest battles of the whole session was fought over that measure. Finally the Grand Trunk won and the charter was granted. It was quite evident at that time, however, that the terms of the charter were not entirely to the satisfaction of the representatives of that corporation, but were accepted on the plan of a half-loaf being better than none or a bird in the hand being worth two in the bush, and also with the idea that, having secured so much in the way of concessions, it might not be impossible to obtain more another year. The latter point is evidently to be tested now, as the corporation has petitioned for some changes in its charter which if granted will make that document more in accord with what the company demands in the nature of rights.

It is to be expected that this petition will not be granted without a contest on the part of the New Haven road, not only because the original charter was strongly opposed by that corporation, but also because in the meantime there has been a bitter war between the two roads in various parts of New England, which has not put them on any more pleasant footing and also because the new concessions asked for would not be to the advantage of the New Haven. There are but a few days left of the present session, even though the legislature should sit overtime, and so the battle is likely to be sharp. What the result of the contest will be is only a matter of conjecture, inasmuch as the complexion of the legislature has materially changed since a year ago, so that the attitude of many of the members toward the two roads is not a matter of record. The battle will be interesting to watch and will undoubtedly inject new life into the closing days of the session.

GROUND FOR INTERVENTION.

If our government has been waiting for good and sufficient ground for intervention in the Mexican disturbances it need wait no longer. The ground is at hand; it is planted with onions, and they are rotting in it on account of the inability of the Diaz government to suppress the insurrection. It is time for our government to act—to depose Diaz or be mad with Madero, and in either case to save the onions.

It appears that imported labor is essential to the raising of domestic onions. The Texan plants, the Rio Grande waters and the Mexican peon gathers the increase, for a consideration in American coin. It takes two nations to raise the Texas onion crop; one furnishes the land and the capital and the other does the hard work. Naturally America does the former and expects the foreigner to do the latter.

Now the Diaz government interferes. At this season of the year the Mexican peon by scores and hundreds comes over the boundary and labors for him whom he calls a "greaser," but from whom he condescends to accept legal tender in requital of his labors. This season he cometh not, says the Texan planter sadly, and domestic labor cannot be obtained. The Mexican comes not to the onion field because the Diaz officials take him off the northbound trains, put a uniform on him and a rifle in his hand, and tell him he is in the army and his work is not to pull American onions, but to shoot at insurrectos, or to be shot at by insurrectos—ay, there's the rub.

If the disorders in Mexico interfere with our trade, commerce and agriculture, and involve American citizens in loss by reason of unpulled onions, is there not ground for interference? Of course the army which has been moved into Texas might be set to pulling onions, but that would be beneath its dignity, and ours also. We cannot consent to that. We must serve notice on Diaz that he must permit a sufficient number of his unhappy subjects to come into our blessed land of liberty and onions, or we shall put down the insurrection or the regular authorities, whichever we happen to come across first.

TENDENCIES IN MUNICIPAL REFORM.

Twenty or 30 years ago, when public attention was first concentrated upon the defects in our city governments, the general opinion was that power and responsibility were too greatly scattered. Politically Americans had been reared to fear a strong executive, and their city governments being absurd imitations of the national had large legislative bodies representative of geographical areas. The executives had even less power relatively than the President has, because most of our city charters reflected that extreme of democracy which swept over the country after the disappearance of the Federal party, while the constitution of the United States was prepared by men reared as subjects of a king, men who had a good deal of fear of democracy and intended to create a strong government to replace the loose confederation of the states during and immediately after the Revolution.

The remedy for bad city government, therefore, was thought to be to give a great deal of power to the mayor and hold him responsible, as the phrase goes, which means little where political combinations make the nominations and the voters for the most part support their regular party tickets. Philadelphia and Pittsburg have mayors who appoint the heads of the departments and are in other ways clothed with considerable power. The Philadelphia city government, however, is represented by most of the papers of that city to be absolutely controlled by a coterie of politicians who grow rich on city contracts. The president of the Voters' League of Pittsburg made a terrific arraignment of the mayor of his city before a legislative committee recently, declaring that he appointed the city treasurer and borrowed public funds of him, and that he kept indicted men, and one case a convicted man, in office.

The man who controls or is controlled by a political organization has little fear of being held responsible for anything. Responsibility is too much diffused among 100 or 150 men, and power is too much concentrated in one man. The effort is to find the ideal number and the Pittsburg reformers are now asking for the essential features of what is erroneously called commission government, a council of nine men elected not by wards but on a general ticket.

William Jennings Bryan has refused $2,000,000 to make his home in Memphis, Tenn. The offer was made by a committee including the state's Senators and Representatives in Congress, inviting him "to come where the people loved him and where he would always find friends." Mr. Bryan is reported to have replied that he know he had friends in the South who would stand by him, and that was why they do not need him there. He said the people need him more in the North.

Bryan is in Washington exercising his duty, as he calls it, as titular head of the Democratic party. Among other things, he has stirred up a strife in the contest for minority leader of the Senate, which is likely to prove disastrous to the party. It has been proposed to elect Senator Martin of Virginia to that position, but Mr. Bryan thinks he is too conservative and has secured the support of 14 of the members. In a general way the Martin and anti-Martin Senators represent the men who are for and against general revision of the tariff.

Brookline, Mass., in special town meeting voted 1104 to 1101, to give the firemen one day off in five instead of one in eight. That seems a small matter for a special assembling of the town voters, who came out in numbers equalling those at the recent state election. The firemen are naturally rejoicing in the majority of three in their favor which in this instance is "as big as a barn door."

A special correspondent sends out from San Antonio, Texas, a story that the state of Yucatan which practically has been in control of the insurrectos for some months, is preparing to declare its independence of Mexico, and will declare itself a permanent independent republic, regardless of the result of the present war between the government and the insurrectos in other states.

An eight-hour bill, making it illegal for owners of factories and mercantile establishments in the state to permit employes to work more than eight hours a day, has been passed by the Massachusetts house of representatives. Similar measures were twice vetoed by Governor Draper, but it is expected that Governor Foss will approve. It is doubtful if such a law will stand the test of constitutionality.

The opponents of the reciprocity agreement are trying to delay, if not prevent, the ratification by the Canadian Parliament of the pact, and it is now acknowledged that the agreement will not be favorably acted upon until after the Easter recess. Congress will hardly give the consent of the American people before that time.

As The News some time ago intimated was likely to be the case, the state senate has suspended the rule prohibiting the introduction of new business after a certain date. Under such a system the rule is worse than a farce, and for the sake of self-respect at least would better be repealed if it is not intended to be enforced.

The school children of New Haven have received a gift of 25,000 catalpa trees for planting on Arbor day, but the city authorities have issued orders against planting any of the trees in the city streets. It is said that in the spring, they drop a bloom which makes sidewalks dangerous to pedestrians.

Now that the little difficulty about a contract is apparently well settled, perhaps Park Commissioner Hammond might emulate the illustrious example of Senator Bailey of Texas and withdraw his resignation. That would make a not unfitting ending of the whole episode.

From all indications the present special session of Congress, and also the regular session next winter, will be largely political, with the nominating conventions next year and the Presidential election the chief objects in view.

"BRADFORD, RHODE ISLAND."

[Providence Journal.]

Representative Utter's petition, in behalf of the citizens of Niantic, for a change of the name of that village to "Bradford" seems likely to be successful, the Postoffice Department having signified its friendly attitude towards the proposal. For many years there has been some confusion by reason of the existence of two Nianties within a comparatively short distance of each other on the New Haven Railroad. The other Niantic is west of New London, and would probably object to giving up the name, so that if the Rhode Island village is ready to abandon the designation, a possible future controversy is neatly avoided.

There is, however, a reason for these two Nianties. The Niantic tribe of Indians once occupied the region roundabout Westerly and New London, but was dispossessed of its pleasant hunting and fishing grounds by the warlike Pequots, who swept down from the interior and pushed them ruthlessly to either side. Thus sprang up the eastern and western Nianties, and eventually the two railroad stations of Niantic came into existence. Niantic, nevertheless, was not the first name the Rhode Island station bore. It was originally Charlestown. At that time the next station to the eastward was called Richmond, after the township in which it was located. These two names of historic significance eventually gave way to Darrville instead of Niantic and to Wood River Junction instead of Richmond or rather Richmond Switch. Thus Niantic has already had three names, and now it is proposed to give it a fourth.

The new English dyeing concern which intends to erect an exceptionally large plant at Niantic might appropriately be honored in the choice of a new name, as Representative Utter and his friends suggest. Bradford is a good name and it would tend to perpetuate and strengthen the industrial bond between the English city of that name, from which the new industry comes, and the south county village. But there is at the present time another Bradford in Rhode Island, not a postoffice village, to be sure, but a United States naval coaling station and a station of the New Haven Railroad. It is a question how Mr. Meiden's road would feel about getting rid of a superfluous Niantic and acquiring in place of it a superfluous Bradford. The coaling station in the town of Portsmouth takes its name from Admiral Bradford, and it might seem ungracious to do anything to lessen the significance of the honor thus paid him. Is Bradford the only available name for Niantic? How would Easterly do?

Providence Aldermen Concur in Advancing Pay of Unskilled Laborers.

New Supervising Inspector of Fifth Steamboat District—Bequest to Moses Brown School.

The Providence board of aldermen has concurred with the action of the common council by unanimously adopting a resolution requesting the commissioner of public works to pay the unskilled laborers in his department 19½ cents an hour and providing that the laborers of this grade be paid a half-day's pay for working any part of a half-day. By this action the laborers receive an increase in their wages of 2½ cents an hour, or 22½ cents in a working day of nine hours, the old wage being 17 cents an hour. According to a statement made by Commissioner Walter F. Slade, the advance will take effect next Monday. By this change, the unskilled laborers in the employ of the city will receive practically the same pay as those engaged in the same kind of work conducted by private concerns. The resolution was adopted immediately after its reading, without discussion and without a dissenting word on the part of either of the 10 members of the board.

The Woonsocket common council has unanimously passed an ordinance providing for the issuing of bonds to the amount of $500,000 for the payment of the floating debt of the city, such issue being recently authorized by the legislature. The ordinance provides for 250 $1,000 bonds at four per cent and 250 $1,000 bonds at four and one-half per cent, both issues being for 30 years. A resolution providing for the assessment and collection of taxes on real and personal property at $1.70 per hundred was also passed and ordered communicated to the board of aldermen.

George Uhler, supervising inspector general of the steamboat inspection service of Washington, and Captain John D. Sloane, the new supervising inspector of the Fifth district, paid a visit to the steamboat inspectors' headquarters in Providence Thursday. The object was to introduce Captain Sloane, who is to have general charge of the inspection service in that city, to the local officials. Captain Sloane comes from Dubuque, Iowa, where he was in charge of the Fifth district prior to its consolidation with the Fourth district April 1. Captain Sloane will make his headquarters in Boston, and the new fifth district includes Boston, Bangor, Portland, New London and Providence. Captain Ira Harris, supervising inspector of the Second district, of which Providence was formerly a part, still retains that post. The re-organization of the districts was made necessary by the unwieldy proportions of the Second district which contained nine local districts, including New York, Philadelphia and Albany. The changes became effective April 1.

By the terms of the will of Sarah J. Hall of Providence, public bequests amounting to $8,500 are made, the Moses Brown School and the Young Women's Christian Association being named among the beneficiaries. The sum of $3,000 is bequeathed to the school, to be used for the erection of memorial gates at one of the entrances, in memory of Mrs. Hall's mother and father. The bequest to the Y. W. C. A. amounts to $500, which is to be devoted to the maintenance of room 446 in the Association building to be known as the "Maria Hawes Room." The $5,000 bequest is specifically made to the "New England Yearly Meeting of Friends." It provides that the executor of the will, John Moulton Hall, husband of the testatrix; the principal of the Moses Brown School, and Charles Sisson shall determine the location, design and material of the gates, which are to have suitable bronze memorial tablets, with the inscription, "George and Maria Green Hawes Gates, in Memory of My Mother and Father." The provision of the will pertaining to the Y. W. C. A. bequest states that the $500 may be invested and re-invested according to the judgment of the trustees, and that the entire net income shall be applied to the suitable furnishing, repairing and maintenance of room 446 in the association building. Besides the public bequests, Mrs. Hall distributed her fortune among relatives in sums varying from $1,000 to $5,000.

Little Grace Case, the 4½-year-old daughter of Louis Case of Riverpoint, was saved from drowning Thursday afternoon by the prompt act of James Greene. Mr. Greene noticed in the waters of the Pawtuxet river, just above the dam what appeared to be the body of a child floating on the water. Hastening to the river bank, he found that his conclusions were correct. Divesting himself of his coat, Greene plunged into the river, bringing the little one safely ashore. The child had, as if by a miracle, kept afloat, and quickly revived under treatment. The tot was playing with a companion near the river bank when she tumbled into the water in the rear of her home. Unable to save herself, she had floated down stream until seen by Mr. Greene. The little one was not missed until she was brought home after escaping death. Later in the day she had apparently fully recovered from the effects of her experience and was able to be about her home.

Miss Mary F. Richards, assistant supervisor of drawing of the Providence public schools, died suddenly at her home in that city, following an illness dating back about two years. Miss Richards was prominent in art circles in the city, formerly conducting a studio for several years, up to the time of her appointment as assistant supervisor of drawing January 2, 1893. She was a member of the Providence Art Club and was identified with that association for several years, up to the time of her death. She was a member of Grace Church, where she taught a Sunday School class, for several years, and was also a Sunday School teacher at the Church of the Messiah in Olneyville. Miss Richards was educated at the Boston Normal Art School and at the Rhode Island School of Design, and taught for several years in the latter institution. About two years ago her health became impaired and she retired from active work. During the past month her health grew steadily worse, and no hope for her recovery was entertained by her family.

The Woonsocket police commission, together with the clerk of the commission and the license clerk, went to Providence Thursday afternoon for a conference with the Providence Board of Police Commissioners, in order to familiarize themselves with the methods in vogue there. The Providence commissioners extended every courtesy to the visitors and explained the workings of the system which has been found to be best adapted, based upon the experiences in that city. Messrs. Preston and Parks of the Woonsocket commission turned most of their attention to the files of the department, in order that they might acquaint themselves with the clerical phase of police commission activities. The conference lasted about two hours, and the Woonsocket commissioners left with a fund of information supplied to them by the Providence officials. They expressed themselves as much pleased by the courteous and painstaking treatment accorded them by the board and its attaches.

Professor Henry B. Gardner, professor of economics in Brown University, will be absent on his Sabbatic year in 1911-'12. In his place instruction will be given by Ralph C. Whitmack, who will take his doctorate in economics at Harvard University in the month of June. Mr. Whitmack was graduated from Brown in the year 1906, and immediately went to India as economic adviser of the Gackwar of Baroda. There he was the means of establishing two banks for the first time in the history of the province, and of introducing many reforms into financial and industrial life of the people. Being unwilling, however, to spend his life in India, he returned two years ago and entered on graduate work at Harvard.

FIRST BOATLOAD LEAVES THE SHIP.

vent from the Hoboken docks, or whether they would have to resort to the breeches buoy and the life savers' boats were questions which they anxiously awaited for the hours to answer. A 20-mile wind from the southwest beat against the vessel at midnight as she lay broadside to it. The breeze increased a little at dawn and the government prediction was for still brisker and colder weather during the day, with probably showers of rain or sleet.

The tugs which had pulled at the steamer at high tide this morning had hauled her stern 25 degrees from her original position, but their efforts had unfortunately only pushed the stern deeper into the sand bar. At low tide the vessel's water line shows 15 feet above the sea. There is 16 feet of water, and as she has a draft of 36 feet it is evident that the vessel is at least six feet in the sand. Her starboard propeller shows only half submerged at low water. From shore she is seen to roll heavily from the pounding on her seaward side. The problem of transferring the passengers is a serious one. The life savers said that if the ground swell kept up as it ran all night, it would be practically impossible to get their boats to the ship without risking a smash.

There was no evidence early today that the vessel has sprung the slightest leak, but the life savers believe another day of pounding would buckle some of her plates. The water tight compartments, however, probably will hold her up indefinitely.

At 6 o'clock this morning there was no change in the Prinzessdrene's position. The tide at that hour was rapidly receding and the tugs had ceased their efforts to pull her off.

The Prinzess Irene was in wireless communication with the Pannonia at daybreak and gave the latter a brief account of her misadventure.

Steamship Prinze Friedrich Wilhelm left shortly before 9 o'clock to take off the passengers of the steamer. Captain Petersen sent a wireless to the destroyer Seneca this morning, asking how many passengers the Seneca and the Mohawk could carry. The Seneca wired back that she could take about 600 passengers on board and either Mohawk 400 passengers.

No attempt had been made to transship passengers from the Irene up to 9 o'clock this morning. A stiff, northwest wind picked up during the morning and picked up a heavy sea which smashed angrily against the stranded Irene. The Lone Hill life savers, who are at the shore end of the breeches buoy, said shortly after 9 o'clock that in their opinion it was now too dangerous to remove passengers, as the weather was not as favorable as it was at sunrise. The day was cloudy and a thick, milkly cloud hung like a curtain off shore.

The Prinze Friedrich Wilhelm, a sistership of the Prinzess Irene, passed out of quarantine shortly before 10 o'clock to take off the stranded passengers. A deputy health officer and assistants were put on board by a quarantine tug, when they will take charge of the passengers when they are transferred, to see that the regular health examination is made.

HEAVY PAYMENTS TO BE FACED.

There Will be No Change in Korea's Financial Policy.

TOKIO, April 7.—Marquis Katsura, the premier and minister of finance, addressing an audience of bankers at Kyoto today, said there would be no change in the government's financial policy during the coming year. Unusual expenditures must be faced in Korea and also measures for the prevention of floods, and for the development of the railroads and the navy must be undertaken. However, the necessary funds would be secured, he said, without resort to additional taxation or foreign loans. The improvements in Korea are planned to extend over a number of years. The Bank of Korea will be able to finance these. The re-construction of the main line of the Japanese railway system into a broad gauge road has been prepared for years. The premier counseled conservative action on the part of the banks in advancing money, notwithstanding the accumulation of capital.

FOR POOR AND SICK OF JAPAN.

K. Okura Adds $500,000 to That Donated by the Emperor.

TOKIO, April 7.—K. Okura has given $500,000 to be devoted, with a similar amount donated some time ago by the emperor, to the relief of the poor and sick of Japan.

ZEPPELIN FLIES TO STUTTGART.

Aviator Goes to Great King and Queen on Their Anniversary.

FRIEDRICSHAVEN Germany, April 7.—In his dirigible balloon, the new Deutschland Count Zeppelin, with a number of passengers, set out at 8:25 o'clock this morning for Stuttgart to visit King William II of Wurtemburg and Queen Charlotte, on the occasion tomorrow of their silver wedding anniversary. From Stuttgart the airship will proceed to Baden Baden and Dusseldorf, King William is an enthusiast in aerial navigation and in July 1908, both he and the queen took a flight with Zeppelin over lake Constance.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE.

James Beach, Central Falls Contractor, Before the Superior Court.

PROVIDENCE, April 7.—James Beach, the Central Falls contractor who is now serving a term of eight months in the state prison for "graft," from the city of Pawtucket, was brought into the superior court today and arraigned on a charge of conspiring to defraud Pawtucket out of $1,731 worth of crushed stone, a charge similar to that on which he was convicted. He pleaded not guilty and trial was set for May 8. Efforts are being made to procure his pardon from Governor Pothier.

ACCIDENTALLY ASPHYXIATED.

James F. Forrest of Providence Found Dead from the Fumes.

PROVIDENCE, April 7.—Detecting the odor of gas in his house early today, Benjamin J. Jepson, with a lighted lantern, traced the escaping gas to the room of his brother-in-law, James F. Forrest, who was dead in his bed from the fumes. The lantern ignited the gas, causing an explosion. Jepson was severely burned and was removed to the Rhode Island Hospital. The property damage was not large. Medical Examiner A. H. Longfellow pronounced Forrest's death due to accidental asphyxiation.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Plan to Have Certain High Positions Exempt From Political Struggles Endorsed by Taft.

[Washington Star.]

Civil service reform of a most practical character has recently been accomplished by President Taft in cooperation with members of his Cabinet, and with the aid and approval of Senators and Representatives, some of them "spoilsmen" of most decided convictions. More particularly does this apply to the appointments to Presidential places under Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury, himself an ardent advocate of civil service reform. President Taft has previously committed himself to the proposition that certain high places, such as collectorships, surveyorships, appraisorships, etc., should be placed on the civil list and exempted from the political struggles invariably attendant on the selection of the incumbents.

Without any law on the subject compelling regard for other than political services, he has already taken most of these places out of the field of political controversy. Candidates for positions of this character in the Treasury Department have found it essential to obligate themselves in advance to aid the administration not only by political service, but by strict attention to business. Bank examiners, for instance, whose duties are of exacting and technical nature, have been brought completely to the standards of the classified service without being obligated by the law to the observance of the rules and regulations of the civil service commission. They are appointed now after their fitness has been demonstrated by rigid examinations prescribed by Controller Murray. Their appointment carries with it a promise which is strictly enforced, that, having taken the oath of service, they shall at once cease all active participation in partisan politics.

The recommendations for appointment are made as heretofore by Senators and Representatives, but these sponsors for applicants are put on honor to recommend only such as they know to be qualified and capable of passing the prescribed examination, and as may, after appointment, be spared from work in the political field.

Presidential appointments in the customs service, including collectors, appraisers, surveyors and naval officers, gradually are being brought to the same plane of business efficiency. No system of examinations has been devised in these cases, but again the appeal is made to those with whom rests the privilege of recommendation, the "politicians" with whom the President and the Secretary of the Treasury must deal. The next step is to impress the appointee with the sincerity of the demand made on him that his administration, to redound to the credit of the appointing power, must be conducted on strict business principles and not for the benefit of his immediate political friends. In the internal revenue service the same principle has been made to apply, as well as in the mints and assay offices.

The result has been marked. An illustration more striking, perhaps, than any other is afforded by the reforms accomplished in the New York custom office, embracing the dismissal of many incompetents, the conviction of dishonest employes and the adoption of altogether new standards of morality by importers, with the attendant increase in collections aggregating millions of dollars. That this new reform along civil service lines is to be of permanent rather than of fleeting nature is evidenced by the cordial cooperation which it has received from politicians whose recommendations have been made, readily and unhesitatingly, along the lines desired by the President.

In other respects President Taft's record as a civil service reformer may will be called unique. Not only have numerous additions to the civil service list been made through the inclusion of certain classes of postmasters, but the initiative has been taken in another and distinctly novel line of civil service reform.

This is the system of retiring allowances designed to rid the service of persons incapacitated for efficient work by means of superannuation. The President's plan does not favor "retirement pensions for civil employes," to be paid from the government treasury. But it does contemplate the grant of an allowance to those in the service who should no longer be there. It gives them a small portion of their salary, and makes the balance available for the employment of younger clerks in the lower grades. It collects from all who remain in the service a certain per cent of their pay, to be placed to the credit of the contributors, in a general fund. In case the contributor is seperated from the service from any cause before the age of retirement his contribution is repaid to him with interest.

If he continues to the retirement age, an allowance is assured him. The actuaries of the Treasury Department have demonstrated that the adoption of this plan would effect an immediate economy in the cost of the government service and would dispose of the criticism now leveled at the service to the effect that there is no provision for ridding it of employes whose usefulness has been destroyed by reason of age and who constitute a permanent burden on the service by being allowed to remain in it at the maximum pay which was theirs in the heyday of their efficiency.

OLD CLAIM TO BE ARBITRATED.

Great Britain and the United States have agreed to arbitrate the Webster claim, involving the ownership of millions of acres of land in New Zealand. The claimants are descendants of Captain J. Webster, a New Bedford whaler, who operated in the South Seas in the early thirties, making his headquarters in New Zealand before Great Britainu established a government in the islands.

The claim has been pending before the American State Department for years. The claimants demand compensation for lands which, it is maintained, were given to Captain Webster by various Maori chiefs. These fertile lands, after the captain's death, reverted to the crown and were subsequently occupied by settlers. Webster, dying in the United States, left a will, bequeathing his New Zealand estate to his heirs, whose claim has been pressed by the United States for many years. Recently the imperial government, with the consent of the New Zealand government, agreed to arbitration.

FOURTH TURNER PURCHASED BY AMERICANS.

Another English art treasure, Turner's canvas "Now for the Painter," which was classed by Ruskin as one of the artist's seven finest, has fallen into the hands of an American collector at a price of $200,000. The painting represents a cross-channel boat hauled to the wind off Calais, about to take on passengers while a heavy sea rolls against the beach. It is the fourth Turner to be purchased by Americans this year. The purchaser is not named in the announcement.

OSTRICH RAISING.

Birds on Pennsylvania Farm Make Agricultural Record for State.

Individual Pairs Are Worth Their Weight in Gold and the Industry is Profitable.

[Washington Star.]

Ostrich raising in a cold latitude is an anomaly hitherto unthought of. For until an ostrich farm recently began making new agricultural history for the state of Pennsylvania, the average person held to the opinion that such a thing was impossible. Previous to the establishment of this farm it has always been held that these monster birds, that have wings and yet are unable to fly are by nature inured to heat and, therefore, can exist only in a tropical climate. The firecracker of this theory has now been exploded, for this remarkable creature, that can easily carry a man on its back and kick with greater force than a horse or a mule, waltzes and plays in the fiercest midwinter blizzard of northern Pennsylvania for the mere fun of it, and doesn't take cold afterward, but seems to flourish.

As soon as an opportunity was given them for doing so, the birds on the Pennsylvania ostrich farm began wading in the snow up to their bodies. An ostrich farm is now in actual operation near Bloomsburg, Pa., and these gigantic birds, weighing from 250 to 350 pounds each, have already accustomed themselves to the open range, the fresh air and the sunshine of our cold northern climate.

The man at the head of the Pennsylvania ostrich farm went to Africa and caught he birds himself, thus making a choice of what best would serve his purpose. Every one of his birds survived the journey and now they are being fed just the same as horses and other farm livestock. The staples which they devour eagerly are bran, corn and dry cut hay. Three pounds is the daily allowance of each bird. Then for dessert each one is given one pound of ground bone. The location of the Pennsylvania ostrich farm was chosen because of its facility for securing lime, which is an absolute necessity in successful ostrich raising.

Until within the last century it was not known that ostriches could be domesticated. An English farmer caught some of the African little ones and tamed them. He kept them in fields with fences so high that they could not jump over. When they were sufficiently grown he plucked them twice a year. The ostriches thrived. They dug out nests in the sand, laid their eggs and hatched them. Their number increased, until now there are hundreds of thousands of birds in South Africa, whose feathers yield an immense profit every year.

The Pennsylvania ostrich farm is divided into corrals, about five to an acre. Although this would seem to be rather close quarters for the immense biped, his health does not suffer in the least, and he manages to keep in rather better condition than his wild brother that troops over desert and field. The male bird chooses his mate when he is three or four years old, and remains faithful to her until death. When it is taken into consideration that the average span of ostrich life is about 80 years, the conjugal fidelity of this singular bird is amazing. When the breeding time comes the male ostrich prepares a comfortable nest by diggings a hole in the sand about a foot deep and a yard wide. The female selects a spot close by to lay the eggs, and the male rolls them into it. The eggs are very large, having a hard shell, and weigh between three and four pounds each. The period of sitting lasts for six weeks. And the male ostrich shares the work with his mate and relieves her regularly.

A curious custom of the ostrich to be noted on the Pennsylvania farm is the morning dance. When the rays of the sun first strike across the fields the birds taken their morning exercise. The large ones begin with a slow, stately step, resembling a minuet. Then the whole flock joins in, stepping high and weaving in and out in what seems to be a set figure. As the dance proceeds the speed of the movement increases, and the birds begin to whirl about until presently the quadrille merges into a waltz. They hold their heads high, raise their wings and spread their plumes in the sunshine. Viewed from a distance with the birds in full feather, this movement forms a beautiful picture, but at a close range the gravity of the birds makes such a ludicrous contrast to the movement that the effect is irresistibly comic.

When the birds are to be plucked which occurs every nine months, they are driven into a small, corral. They are then taken, one at a time, into a V-shaped inclosure, made of strong boards, with an exit at one end, through which the ostrich scurries out after being despoiled of its feathers. During the actual plucking a long, narrow bag is slipped over the bird's head. This serves to keep the bird quiet while the operators are at their work. The greatest care is exercised in the process of plucking, because in the feather sockets are injured no more feathers will grow in them. The tail and shorter feathers are pulled out first. Then the large wing feathers are cut off with short, heavy scissors, leaving about three inches of the stumps, which are carefully pulled out about three months later.

When the plucking is over the feathers are sorted into about 20 various qualities, according to length and color. They are then packed and sent to the feather dresser, who cleanses them thoroughly in soap suds, after which they are rinsed in clear water. The naturally black feathers are dyed in black, the long white wing plumes are bleached and the others are dyed in various colors. After dyeing they are again rinsed, dipped in clear water containing starch and beaten on a smooth board. They are then curled, sewed, steamed and curled and handled over to the "buncher," who combs and adjusts them to the different shapes and modes we are accustomed to see in the milliners' windows.

Their most fascinating work at the Pennsylvania ostrich farm, however, is looking after the young chicks, that at birth are about the size of grown chickens, and in color not unlike a young turkey. Young ostriches are the most agile things on earth. When they are 10 days old they are as playful as young lambs and as curiously inquisitive as young kittens. And as they begin to grow they likewise commence to look out for themselves, and before long are no more trouble than their fathers and mothers.

Individual pairs of ostriches are worth their weight in gold, one might as well say; at least this will apply to the Pennsylvania ostrich farm, where none will be disposed of for either love or money. Ostriches, however, have been sold as high as $50,000 a pair. In Cape Colony one couple earned over $360,000 for their owner. This shows that the Cape breeders have good reason for being enthusiastic over their industry, as well as wanting to subserve their interests by keeping ostrich farming well under their own control.

The Newport Journal

is especially adapted for mailing.

The Chief Difference Between Crawford Boilers and other boilers is that they heat the houses they are rated to heat;—you don't have to get the "next larger size."

These Boilers give more heat per pound of coal than others and cost less in repairs. They are simplicity itself in operation, are guaranteed for zero weather efficiency and to save fuel, labor, worry and money to those who use them.

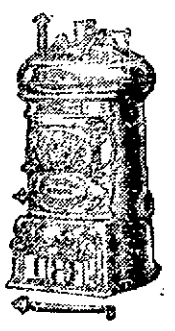

There are no packed joints, sheet iron parts or brick linings in these Boilers, and the "Heat Ribs" cast on the interiors are found in no others.

They are a gilt edge investment for those who want heat and plenty of it at the minimum of expense and care.

SPRING OPENING

IT IS with no small touch of pride that we come to you this year with our Spring Announcement, so marked has been the success of our merchandise gathering. Spurred on by the remembrance of the past ten years' successes and enthused by the prospects of future possibilities we have bent every effort to gather such a collection of home furnishings as would surpass any past attempts of ours to meet your most exacting requirements.

In this our supremest effort no worthy market east or west has been slighted in our determination to place at your disposal a stock that could not be equalled in its completeness or its economy. It is distinctively beautiful, it is distinctively reasonably priced. In every instance our high standard of quality has been strictly adhered to and the smallness of the price made possible only by the fortunate circumstances which regulate our purchasing.

A Grand Exhibit and Sale of New Spring Furniture from Leading Makers!

Spring Draperies.

What delights the women of the house more than the thoughts of draperies? What pictures of elegance and beauty that word conjures up!

Our drapery department is just bubbling over with 1911 newness—filmy nets, dainty muslins, dignified scrims, Irish points and Battenburgs, and a world of novelties that are fascinating beyond description and a price tale withal that will captivate at first sight.

FOR THE DINING ROOM.

The showing in dining room requisites is simply beyond your wildest imaginings. There are solid mahogany pieces of exquisite design so little priced that you might almost question their genuineness, and the oaks are of the most beautiful graining we've ever seen—clean cut and up to the very minute in style requirements.

1911 Rugs.

Many alterations in our rug department have placed it among the best departments of the kind in New England. Its whole stock has been chosen with an eye to meet the exacting requirements of this particular locality and from the highest reputed makers in the country.

Our rug prices are based not on what the public will stand, but on the actual cost of the goods—our methods of purchasing place that cost where every rug price means a saving to you.

Carriage man knows what a fine lot of babies have come along to test his resourcefulness this spring and his new creations prove his effort. Here's the swellest line of baby carts you ever saw, no baby could help growing healthy and happy in one of these rigs.

This swell little rig illustrates how style and little price have met and made friends. $20.25 is the price and no carriage made offers more of style, fineness of detail in make and finish than this one does. FIFTY YEARS OF PROGRESS.

Commercial Congress Marks Re-Nationalization of the South.

State Flags Set in Emblematic Form at Meeting in Atlanta Makes Dramatic Moment.

[G. Grosvenor Dawe.]

None but those who actually attended the sessions of the Southern Commercial Congress in Atlanta, March 5 to 10, were able to feel the spirit that stirred through the occasion. After it was all over, Dr. S. C. Mitchell, president of the University of South Carolina, said: "I have attended many conventions in my life, but I never attended one that, based upon material things, was more full of a tremendous moral purpose. I have caught the spirit of this thing. You men are using the great resources-facts of the South to stir us all up to an understanding of the invincible position the South can be brought to occupy in national history when once more (as in the case of the early history of the South) our men are nerved up to take their share in national development." The meetings in Atlanta, coming just 50 years after the separation, and held in the presence of hundreds of men of national and international renown, did actually give vitality to a re-nationalization of the South. The episodes of the morning of March 10, show this.

At the request of ex-Governor Francis of Missouri, first vice president of the Southern Commercial Congress, President Taft wielded the gavel during that session. The moment he called the session to order a concealed band electrified the audience with the strains of Dixie, and then slowly up through the centre aisle of the auditorium came 10 business men of Alabama carrying with them the flag of their state. As their feet touched the steps of the platform the band ceased playing, and in silence they came into the presence of the President, the flag of Alabama was handed to Lieutenant Governor Walter D. Seed, and then was placed in a prepared socket back of the 200 distinguished men on the platform, and its folds fully extended. The same method was followed with the flags of Arkansas, Florida, Georgia (received by Governor Brown), Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, Mississippi received by Governor Noel, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina (received by Governor Blease), Tennessee, Texas, Virginia (received by Dr. Denny), and West Virginia.

A more dramatic moment has not occurred in the recovery of the South. For 25 minutes the hearts and souls of men and women were tense with patriotism and with sentiment. Hundreds were weeping and shouting. The President of the United States himself was deeply affected. Scarcely a dry eye could have been found among the thousands who were watching the scene.

The escorts of the flags were not insignificant men, nor accidentally chosen. For instance, Maryland was led by ex-Governor Edwin Warfield and Bernard N. Baker, men of immense business influence and national reputation. Colonel S. W. Fordyce, who has built 10,000 miles of railroads through the southwestern states, carried the flag of Arkansas. A tottering federal veteran carried the flag of West Virginia. The moment that the last flag was placed in its socket and the folds extended, the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" were heard, softly at first, but increasing to a burst of harmony, while from the rafters of the auditorium, where it had been concealed, an enormous "Old Glory" unfolded and fluttered down, extending as a background of the flags of the South for more than 40 feet. Then a screen was lifted, and across the face of "Old Glory" were seen to be scrolled the words, "E Pluribus Unum."

Not a man present but felt the thrill of the occasion, and then as the audience gradually perceived the arrangement of the state flags under the folds of "Old Glory," they saw this marvel: That the flags of the South nearest to the flag of the United States were those that 50 years ago were the first to withdraw from beneath its folds. In other words, South Carolina and Mississippi occupied the centre of the stage, and were flanked by Florida and Alabama, and so on through the order of their secession throughout '60 and '61. Thus in emblematic form was set forth the true, great heart of America, in that within 50 years a recovery had been made, the flags of the South rested serene under the union of which they are a part, and the South now offered its strength to the nation.

The emblematic setting was continued in the two orations which were then delivered. Good, gray Senator Gordon of Mississippi, serene in 77 years of life, rose up and for 20 minutes gave a message "From Yesterday to Today." Instead of being a thousand words, it was a thousand heart throbs. He spoke as one about to die, and he begged his countrymen, North and South, to be strong in a union of purpose in meeting all the future problems of a nation upon whose progress his eyes must soon close. Then, strong in the possession of youth, and himself emblematic of the young manhood of the South, Hon. Clarence J. Owens, commander-in-chief of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans, delivered an oration whose main idea was that it was a message "from today to tomorrow." He pleaded with the young men of the South to be proud of their ancestry, but to be humiliated, if they did not themselves make an equally distinguished ancestry for their sons and for their sons' sons to look back upon. His tones rang out through the auditorium and were a summons to purest patriotism, displaying itself along the lines of a nation's future needs and development.

The Atlanta Constitution rightly stated that the deeds of the Southern Commercial Congress made a re-nationalized South, and set millions of minds right, through the influence of the nation's papers, regarding the recovery of the South, its progress, its prospects and its approaching national influence. The difficult labors of the congress, in the two years and a half of its existence, brought their great reward in March, 1911; for in a day we righted many wrong impressions as to the South, and the veil was lifted from the second 50 years of progress upon which the South now enters.

UPHOLDING THE PURE FOOD LAW.

[Chicago Tribune.]

The Supreme Court of the United States handed down an opinion the other day which should be of general interest, because it strengthens the pure food law.

A St. Louis firm is in the egg-preserving business. It sold a number of cases to a Peoria bakery, but held them in storage, subject to shipping orders. After the goods had been shipped and were still in the original packages a government agent seized them as adulterated. The eggs had been dosed with borax, contrary to law.

The lawfulness of the seizure was disputed on the ground that the government had no jurisdiction over goods carried in inter-state commerce not intended for sale. Title to the eggs had passed before they left St. Louis, and the purchaser had had his own goods shipped to him, not for sale but as raw material in manufacturing. This was ingenious, but it did not convince the court. It held that the pure food law is in the interest of the public health, and makes contraband products adulterated in violation of law which enter into interstate commerce. Whenever they do, the government can pursue and destroy them wherever found.

If it had not been for the Government those doctored eggs would have gone first into cake and then into the stomachs of Peorians. It is a sad fate that eggs which are beginning to decay, or which are kept from utterly spoiling by illegal treatment, find a market in many bakeries. Even those which are extremely far gone and cannot be worked off in cake can be used for the purpose of glazing bread. The state, as well as the nation, should keep an eye on bad eggs and prevent their use as a raw material in manufacturing food.

ITALY'S ECONOMIC VIGOR.

Industrial Renaissance Yet in Its infancy But Gives Earnest of a Vigorous Future.

[Ernesto Nathan (Mayor of Rome), in the Century.]

The seven states out of which the young Italian nation was formed represented seven different forms of government, ranging from a military despotism, to a flabby, corrupt tyranny, with different laws, dealing out different measures of justice to populations of radical differences of character, aptitude, education and customs. To weld such a variety into one body politic presented enormous difficulties such as have confronted no other nation, past or present. Still, it has been done, and every day marks a strengthening of the unification.

A uniform system of elementary instruction, uniform military education for all who serve in the army or the navy, the transfer of northern governmental functionaries to the south, and vice versa, carrying out the nation's laws and regulations, melting out justice, and teaching in the schools, have brought the various ethnological groups into touch, while industrial and commercial enterprises have contributed to the same end, and brought about an interchange of thoughts, habits and language. Despite the tangles of political strife, hurried, makeshift legislation, imperfect organization, excessive taxes, relatively small and ill-distributed wealth, Italian unity has been a plant of rapid and steady growth, fostered and stimulated by the silent forces of labor and thrift.

In 1882 2,500,000 tons of coal was sufficient for our boilers; now we require over 9,000,000. Besides 800,000 horse power of water. In our textile production, mainly cotton cloth and fancy materials, we produce more than Belgium, and not only supply our home markets almost entirely, but export a considerable amount. Thus the mixed fancy goods of Milan have such a reputation as to be completely monopolized by the London market. This is not altogether an isolated example, for the black silks of Como, the umbrella silks and the brocades are taken up exclusively by the big English houses.

The manufacture and use of artificial manure, once almost unheard of, have become familiar in all parts of the land, to fertilize fruit, corn and pasture. As a result, we have doubled our head of cattle, and our wheat crop from 42,000,000 hi-stolliters has crept up to 57,000,000. In 1882 our wine crop totaled 28,000,000 hectoliters; now it is over 50,000,000. Little by little there will be more wheat to eat, less wine to drink, for like all wine-growing countries we are over stocked while the consumption does not tend to increase.

Notwithstanding our heavier crops, our import of wheat increases yearly, and surplus population does not account for it. There is a more satisfactory reason; our people eat more bread, drink more wine, consume more animal food, than in the past, decreasing or stamping out pellagra, malaria, and other terrible ills due to insufficient nourishment of the human body.

Were proof required of Italy's economic vigor, it is patent to all. From our lowlands to our fruit and flower culture, from our textile stuffs to our artistic furniture and earthenware, from our foodstuffs to our motor cars, the whole world can witness an industrial renaissance which, if yet in its infancy, gives an earnest of a vigorous future.

PLEA OF OLD INDIAN.

Chief of the Hopis Appeals to President for Freedom From Rule of the White Man.

"Oh, great white father, my people want to live as in the days of the medicine man, before the paleface took away from us the things that were ours. We don't want schools and school teachers. We want to be let alone to live as we wish, to roam free without the white man always there to tell us what we must do and what we cannot do."

This and much more constituted the speech made to President Taft by Chief Yukeoma, representing about 700 Hopi Indians from the Moqui reservation, in northeastern Arizona. Yukeoma, a swarthy, little copper-colored man, with small, beady eyes and a sad, peaceful looking face, is the leader of a faction of the Hopis utterly to oppose to the education of their children. Another faction, somewhat larger, is progressive, and upholds the government in placing schools and teachers on the reservation and in compelling the children to attend.

Yukeoma looked dejected after the President told him, through the same interpreter who quoted his speech, that all people these days believed in education and must have it to properly face the future. The President told the aged chief that the old Indians could do as they desired about education, but that they would not be allowed to stop their children from obtaining knowledge. A new school building is going up within a mile of the home of Yukeoma, and it has given the old man the "cold shivers." When the school is completed the government will use force to send the little Indians to the teacher.

Soldiers had to compel attendance at the schools some years ago, the whole tribe of 2,000 people then being opposed to education. Since then more than half the tribe has joined the progressives. Yukeoma and his faction are known as the reactionaries.

Yukeoma was accompanied to the White House by Commissioner Valentine and A. L. Lawshe, former assistant postmaster general, but now Indian agent of the Hopi tribe. Mock Selima, an interpreter came with Mr. Lawshe and the old chief with the doleful face. Hopi means peace and the Hopis have never been fighters, being more stirred now than ever before in their history.

Peace River Valley Alone Has Large Acreage of First-Class Agricultural Land.

[Arthur Stringer in Hampton Magazine.]

The Peace River valley in Canada is made up of 65,000,000 acres of first-class agricultural land, with a wheat growing capacity of what has been approximately estimated at 500,000,000 bushels a year. Not only can these northland plains and valleys grow wheat, but they can grow wheat of the finest and hardest variety. They have done it; they are doing it now. They will continue to do it more and more, as those man-hungry acres are more and more invaded.

That they are destined to be invaded is no longer problematical. For certain new truths have been evolved, not only as to the nature of the north, but as to the nature of the cereals which it can grow. The farther north that wheat is matured, for instance, the harder the berry, the whiter the flour, and the better the general milling quality. "Number One Northern" has become a name to conjure with; it stands the aristocrat of the grain family. The same holds true of barley and oats and rye. The nearer the Arctic circle they can be grown, the larger and heavier the ear and the better the quality of the grain itself.

For in this country you find a clear 12-hour day of undiluted sunlight, and what the sunlight can do to the softer, "bleach"-demanding, lower grade wheat of the south was exemplified when, 12 years ago, soft wheat from southern Kansas was sent north to Fort Vermilion, a Hudson Bay Company post on the Peace river, between 56 and 60 degrees north latitude. Here it was planted and replanted, season by season. A year ago this same Kansas wheat was returned to its native state where, after expert examination, it was put under the grading "No. 1 Hard Spring Wheat." Ten years of sub-Arctic sunlight had toughened it into a berry of the finest and hardest quality.

This sub-Arctic north, in fact, needed only to be known to lose a great deal of its terrors. Over 550 miles north of Canada's most northerly railway point, at Fort Providence on the Mackenzie river, on the fifteenth day of last July Canada's superintendent of forestry found wheat already "in the milk," potatoes in flower, garden peas fit for use, and tomatoes, turnips, rhubarb, beets, cabbage, onions, and other vegetables in abundance.

For years now horses and cattle have been kept at Salt river, at 61 degrees and 30 minutes north latitude, more poleward than Chilkat Village itself. For 26 years cattle raising has been carried on at Fort Good Hope, which actually stands within the Arctic circle. For over 30 years the practice of herding out horses has been an acknowledged success in the Peace River country, and about Lesser Slave Lake stock has wintered on the range for years.

Three years ago Mr. Conroy, of the department of Indian affairs, reported to a Canadian parliamentary committee that he had found excellent farms in the latitude 62 degrees 3 minutes—which is almost as far north as Iceland, farther north than the southern end of Greenland and some 800 miles north of the upper boundary of Minnesota—where he saw heavy crops of wheat, oats, barley, and peas. Before he started south, July twenty-eighth, barley cutting was already under way. He reported all kinds of wild fruits in the country, with the exception of apples, which cannot be grown north of Edmonton. But even as far north as Fort Providence he picked "with his own hand fine strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, and cranberries. And this is the territory even beyond that territory which General Sherman once contemptously designated as "The Frozen Belt."

This frozen belt holds more than grain and the possibilities of bewildering grain harvestings. Timber suitable for commercial purposes grows right to the Arctic sea with larch and balsam, tamarack and white poplar, birch and black and white spruce flourishing as far north as Fort Macpherson. Besides its timber it has immense water powers going to waste, and natural gas fields simply waiting for the driller. It has copper and silver and gypsum, galena, and outcroppings of gold, the value of which cannot as yet even be guessed at. It has salt and fish in abundance. In sight even now it has tar and tar sand sufficient to manufacture enough asphalt to pave every street in every town in the Dominion of Canada. Its coal deposits are inestimable.

The Dominion superintendent of forestry, in testifying recently before the House of Commons agriculture committee, stated that on Slave river near Fort Norman he had discovered a bank of burning coal, some 20 miles in length, which the great Mackenzie himself had reported as being on fire in 1789!

But this is only the outskirt, the remoter fringe, of the country in which the United States of America is at present so actively interested. The territory which has been swallowing up a half million of western American immigrants is that which lies closer to the International line and is made up of the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

"CHEESY."

[Current Literature.]

A new word has been coined by the aviators to describe the one deadly peril that confronts them—the word "cheesy." It seems to have been a "cheesy" atmosphere that caught both Moisant's and Hoxsey's aeroplanes and sent them hurling to their destruction. The word, it is explained, refers to Swiss cheese, which, as we all know, is full of holes. Balloonists discovered years ago that the air is full of "holes" also, especially near the earth—full, that is to say, of what are described as "partial vacuums," and which are probably downward currents, in which an aeroplane will fall at times 100 feet or more before it can be controlled. Similar currents in the sea have been assigned as the probable cause of many of the accidents to submarine boats.

Curtiss found these "holes in the air" in his trip down the Hudson, and observers on the train that followed him assert that at times he fell from a height of 150 feet to within a few feet of the surface of the water. Wilbur Wright found them in his trip from Governors Island up the Hudson river during the Henry Hudson celebration. Just before Hoxsey's fatal fall Latham was in the air and speedily descended because, as he said, he never before say such bad meteorological conditions. His theory is that an upward current caught one of Hoxsey's wings and a downward current caught the other in midair. A similar downward puff it is thought, caught Moisant's aeroplane as he was descending, tipping it suddenly and spilling him out.

"We know, in truth," says the writer in the Springfield Republican, "little more about this vast overhead sea than the ancients knew of the tempests of the ocean when their frail barks began to venture timidly away from the land. Storms we recognize and also in a general way that the atmosphere may be full of boiling whirlpools on a day when no gale is felt at the surface of the earth. We are still in the position of the early navigators who with raft or dugout first dared to leave the shore behind and try their fortunes on the open sea. It is as necessary for us as for them to conciliate Aeolus, god of the winds."

ITCHED SO COULD NOT SLEEP

"I suffered from the early part of December until nearly the beginning of March with severe skin eruptions on my face and scalp. At first I treated it as a trivial matter. But after having used castile soap, cold cream, vanishing cream, etc., I found no relief whatever. After that, I diagnosed my case as eczema, because of its dry, scaly appearance. The itching and burning of my scalp became so intense that I thought I should go mad, having not slept regularly for months past, only at intervals, waking up now and then because of the burning and itching of my skin. Having read different testimonials of cures by the Cuticura Remedies, I decided to purchase a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap. After using them for a few days I recognized a marked change in my condition. I bought about two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and five cakes of Cuticura Soap in all, and after a few days I was entirely free from the itching and burning. My eczema was entirely cured, all due to using Cuticura Soap and Ointment daily. Hereafter I will never be without a cake of Cuticura Soap on my washstand." (Signed) David M. Shaw, c/o Paymaster, Pier 66, N. R., New York City, June 2, 1910.

A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERERS AND MEN WHOSE HAIR IS THINNING.

Dandruff now—bald later. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalp cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and take the dandruff so it doesn't fall until it's dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellow druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the John M. Callahan Drug Store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that it is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO, the clean liquid preparation that kills the germ of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guaranteed by druggists everywhere and in Newport by John M. Callahan.

FOR THE BEST LETTERS.

Presentations to Miss Leary of the Potter and Master Haas of the Coggeshall League.

The final meetings for the season of the League of Good Citizenship are being held this month. Thursday afternoon Potter division met, Miss Katherine Jenckes in charge and President Catherine Christiano in the chair. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Miss Helen Kavanagh, a silver locket engraved with her monogram was presented to Miss Marian Leary for the best letter describing the work of the Newport League, written to an imaginary friend in Fairbanks, Alaska. Honorable mention was made of the letter written by Miss Helen Kavanagh and flower seeds were distributed.

Coggeshall division also met Thursday, Mrs. Ernest Howe in charge and President William Haas in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary. Miss Helen Reynolds, and a silver watch engraved with his initials was presented to William Haas for the best letter and flower seeds were distributed. Seven letters, more than were written in any other division, were handed in at Coggeshall.

THE FOUNTAIN FOR CAB HORSES.

To the Editor of the News:

Dear Sir: A subscription has been started to buy a fountain to be placed on Touro Park West for the relief of horses through the summer. Attention has been called to the fact that a cabman whose stand is in the upper part of the city has to return to his stable to water his horses, or else take a long trip to the Police Station fountain or the one on Washington square. As one fare succeeds another rapidly in the busy season, the horse must therefore often go unwatered.

In New York last summer hydrants were opened all over the city and men kept employed with buckets of water to supply the need.

Newport should certainly have one fountain on the hill, where so many of the cabmen have their stands. This object should appeal to all owners of cab horses as well as to those persons who are fond of animals. The poor horses certainly work hard enough for their oats. Is it too much to ask to let them quench their thirst occasionally?

Contributions for the purpose may be sent to Mr. T. E. Congdon, Aquidneck National Bank.

THE PLAYERS DINED.

Father Mathew Society Recognizes Work of Its Basket Ball Team.

Suggestion of a City Base Ball League Along Similar Lines Endorsed.

The members of the Father Mathew Total Abstinence Society Thursday evening showed their appreciation of the good work of the basket ball team in the City League games during the past winter, by giving a complimentary banquet at the Perry House. There was a large gathering of members of the society and a number of guests, who shared in the good cheer and the hearty commendation of the players.

The banquet was served in the large dining room, with a horseshoe table running the entire length of the room, and there were only a few empty seats. The tables were attractivesy decorated with palms, potted plants and roses in vases, and the repast served by Messrs. Dwyer & Purcell was much enjoyed. During the dinner the H. K. Howard orchestra rendered a program of popular music, the choruses of a number of which were sung by the guests, this part of the entertainment being one of the most heartily enjoyed features of the occasion. The menu was as follows:

Blue Points on the Half Shell.
Chicken Consomme in Cups.
Celery Olives Radishes
Chicken Halibut, Joinville.
Pommes Marquise
Roast Chicken, French Filling
Apple Sauce
New Potatoes Naturel French Peas
Salad a la Perry
Assorted Fruits
Fancy Cakes Ice Cream
Crackers and Cheese
Demi Tasse, Special.

Mr. John P. Sullivan was the toastmaster and on either side of him were seated President Daniel E. Doherty and other officers of the Father Mathew Society, Vice President Horace S. Brown and Secretary and Treasurer Patrick J. Johnson of the City Basket Ball League, other guests and the special guests of honor, the members of the basket ball team. After the banquet Toastmaster Sullivan called upon several of those present to make speeches and all responded in praise of the work of the team and of the League officers. John Kering read a short original poem, which was appreciated by all.

Daniel E. Doherty, president of the society and chairman of the athletic committee, was the first speaker and told of the reason for holding the banquet, to show the society's appreciation of the team's work, which he said had resulted in the addition of 55 new members to the roll. Before he concluded President Doherty presented signet rings and gold cuff buttons, suitably engraved, to each member of the team.

William A. Martin, captain of the team, made a capital speech, on his first attempt as an after-dinner talker. During his remarks he complimented Coach Roach on his work for the team. Charles Gifford sang the well known old-time song, which of late has acquired a new popularity, "Darling I am Growing Old." Brief remarks were made by Messrs. Michael F. Vaughan, John P. Casey and J. Joseph M. Martin of the Father Mathew Society and Vice President Horace S. Brown of the City League. George Boyle sang "Jimmy Valentine," James J. Martin recited Longfellow's "Resignation," James Dwyer of the team spoke in place of Coach Roach, who was unavoidably absent, and Mr. John F. Sullivan sang "The Old Sunday Dinner."

In his speech Mr. Casey suggested that a base ball league on the lines of the basket ball league would be a good thing for the city, and after the regular speeches President Doherty endorsed the suggestion, saying that the Father Mathew athletic committee would do all it could to bring about such a league, furnishing a team from the society's membership and providing uniforms. He said that in such a league the number of players in each team should be restricted, there should be a full schedule of games and a governing board should have charge of all matters relating to the league. He said the Father Mathew Society's rooms are at the disposal of those who wish to hold meetings to organize such a league. His remarks met with general endorsement.

After the dinner Toastmaster Sullivan appointed a committee to carry the flowers used on the table to the society's members who are sick at home or in the Newport Hospital.

THE FISHERMEN BUSY.

There are renewed signs of activity among the fishermen. At the shipyard steamer Inez has gone overboard, sloop Halcyon is being painted and will be launched at once, sloop Crustacean has had her well taken out and a fish hold installed, and will soon be ready for duty. All belong to the Gray Brothers. At C. B. Anderson's the men are busy and hope to put in a few traps in the bay in a day or two. The herring should begin running shortly.

It is expected to have the north ways at the shipyard cleared of winter boats Saturday, in order to haul out the Hattie and Dauntless of the W. R. Rose fleet.

POLICE NOTES.

The police report this morning included cases of drunkeness. One man was fined, but not having the money went to jail; the other pleaded not guilty. Then there was a combination of drunk and disorderly, who was fined $10 and costs for carrying a concealed weapon—a razor. He was from the Training Station and raised such a disturbance at the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association Thursday night that the police were called in to take him away. He was trying to fight every one and tried to fight the policeman.

A number of street lights were reported broken during the night between Chastelleux avenue and the hill east of the Morgan place, having evidently been broken by soldiers returning to Fort Adams.

BY WAY OF FAREWELL.

A farewell reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Dowick at the residence of the former's parents on Van Zandt avenue Thursday evening, 45 persons being present. There was whist at nine tables, prizes being won as follows: First for women, Miss Dora Klaver; booby, Miss Ella Ronayne; first for men, Mr. Ludy; booby, Mr. J. Cooper. Refreshments were served, followed by music furnished by Misses Estelle and Carolyn Mathewson, Miss Mabel Minkler, accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Mathewson and others in general singing. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dowick will leave for their home in Brooklyn by the New York boat tonight.

DANCES BY THE GIRLS.

Novel Feature of the Gymnastic Exhibition at the Rogers, the Boys Also Doing Well.

Thursday evening a gymnasium exhibition was given at the Rogers High School by boys and girls from the four classes, which was excellent in every respect. In all the drills the pupils were pleasing, and their proficiency showed hard practice and good instruction on the part of Miss Brownell and Mr. Chase, the directors of the classes. The exhibition was not tiresome, as such affairs are apt to be, and everything went off rapidly and smoothly.

The program opened with a fine march by the Junior girls. The class worked in perfect unison and made a pleasing impression. The marching was followed by a free-hand drill, which was equally well done.

The second event was a free-hand drill by the Junior boys. In executing a part of this the boys assumed a sitting posture, which made the drill doubly hard. The boys were equal to their task, however, and did the work cleverly.

Next came a series of three dances by the Junior Middle girls. The first two were pleasing, the "Ace of Diamonds, and "The Bleking," but the "Swedish Clap dance" was the best. This was somewhat like a minuet, and northern in its style. The dance was amusing and the dancers seemed to enjoy it almost as well as the spectators, of whom there were a large number.

The dumbbell drill by the Junior Middles won admiration, as the boys were masters of the movements, especially the wrist movement, which is by no means easy.

This was followed by the Senior and Senior Middle girls in an Indian club drill. The older girls executed the movements with grace and skill and were heartily applauded.

A free-hand drill by the Junior boys and a wand drill by the Junior Middle girls ended these exercises. Both were creditable and showed careful practice.

Next on the program came a large squad under Bowler in an exhibition of high jumping, and an equally large squad under Physical Director Chase in work on the horizontal bar. Many difficult feats were performed on the bar, and the jumping was excellent, though the boys did not try to make a record.

Perhaps the best thing on the program was the dancing by the Senior and Senior Middle girls, "The Parisian Model" and the "Board Walk" were good, but the "Scotch Reel" and "Oxdansen" proved the feature. The "Scotch Reel" was a lively dance, characteristic of the Scotch, and was performed in a lively manner. The "Oxdansen" was peculiar and almost ridiculous. The audience was kept laughing throughout and the girls seemed to take it as a huge joke themselves.

The program closed with good apparatus work by three squads representing all the classes. The squad consisting of Hoar, Underwood, Sullivan and Plummer did difficult stunts upon the parallel bars and mat.

The exhibition was followed by dancing for an hour. The music, by Miss Vera Barlow, was a pleasing addition.

SALE OF BROADWAY BUSINESS PROPERTY.

The estate at numbers 90-94 Broadway, comprising two stores and a tenement, the land running through to West Broadway, has been sold by the heirs of James T. Hazard, deceased, to David Frant and Jennie Frant. The lot is bounded southerly by land of Benjamin Easton, Jr., northerly by land, now or formerly of Maria B. Gratrix, deceased; easterly by Broadway and westerly by West Broadway, and comprises according to the city atlas 8,329 square feet of land. The south and major portion of this property was purchased by the late George M. Hazard from General Thomas H. Sherman in 1868 and a meat market built by him in the "Sherman House" at that time has been almost continuously used as such to the present time. Mr. Hazard being followed by his brother, James T. Hazard; Messrs. Kulloch and Manuel and among others James Sanford, Patrick Barkley and Manuel S. Vargas.

The sale was effected through the real estate agency of Simeon Hazard.

A PORTRAIT OF CAPTAIN JOHN FRYE.

Mr. George Stanhope has an old picture, which he has been showing to guessers to see if any one knew who it was. The mystery has been solved as it has been definitely decided that it is the portrait of Captain John Frye, who was lost at sea on a trip from England years ago. The picture was given to Mr. Stanhope by his brother and came from the Fowler family, some years ago. Captain Frye was a brother of Mr. Stanhope's grandmother, so that he belongs to a day far distant. Mrs. Coggeshall was the first to suggest that it was a portrait of Captain Frye.

SENATE DEMOCRATS DISAGREE.

Not In Harmony With Those in the House on Tariff Revision.

La Follette Expected to Oppose Taft in the Republican National Convention.

[Washington correspondence of The News.]

WASHINGTON, April 6.—It is evident that the Democrats of the Senate, or a large number of them, will not agree with the Democrats of the House in the matter of piecemeal tariff revision. From the expressions heard among the members of the Senate it seems that they believe in a wholesale revision if there is to be any revision at all.

And that seems to meet the approval of quite a number of insurgents, especially since the Canadian reciprocity agreement was presented. That the House Democrats are determined to send over separate bills there can be no doubt. In so doing they afford the Senate Democrats the opportunity to revise the entire tariff for any amount of amendments that may be attached to a bill raising revenue after it has once been passed by the House. The insurgents want to get at the whole question of the tariff, because they think the reciprocity bill strikes their states and the farmers without a compensating reduction of duties on manufactured products.

From the talk among the progressives it is evident that Senator La Follette is considered a candidate for President against Mr. Taft. That is also accepted by quite a number of men from the northwest who are not in Congress, but are giving attention to political affairs.

J. Adam Bede, former Congressman from Minnesota, says that La Follette's friends are already at work in Wisconsin and Minnesota trying to get delegates. He asserts that Minnesota stalwarts will control the Minnesota convention and send Taft delegates next year. Congressman Davis of Minnesota, on the other hand, says that 90 per cent of the Republicans of that state oppose Taft. Davis is an insurgent.

The increase of the expenses of the Senate is receiving attention and there is talk about making a raid upon the numerous employes that have been taken on from time to time until there are now enough to take care of the work of the Senate and something to spare. It is doubtful whether anything will come of it, although severe criticism of the large Senate pay roll is heard when Senators talk over conditions about the committee rooms and corridors. The great difficulty will be in knowing where to begin.

It makes some difference who is chairman of the contingent expense committee of the Senate. With the place in the hands of a rigid economist there might be a number of vacancies on the Senate pay roll. But it is a place of little consequence because it has nothing to do with actual legislation, and the average Senator wants a position where he can do something for his state.

"I supose I should appear in my Sunday clothes," remarked Senator Pomerene of Ohio, speaking before he was sworn in as a Senator. He was told that if he should don the usual black frock coat of the man going to church on Sunday he would have wrapped himself in proper Senatorial dignity to be sworn in as a Senator.

"Oh, as for dignity," laughed the Ohio Senator, "you knew I don't go in for much in that line. It wasn't the dignity feature that interested me."

Senator O'Gorman of New York is the first of the name who has ever held a seat in either branch of Congress. It is rather strange, for the name seems to have belonged to a number of very prominent men in the country. Of course Senator Pomerene is first with that name among the Senators or Representatives either for that matter.

Senator Lippitt of Rhode Island is also a man who brings a new name to the Congressional rolls. Luke Lea sounds odd, but back in the faraway days there was a Luke Lea in Congress, and he also came from Tennessee.

Just while the Senate was getting ready to distribute committee places Senator Dixon went home. "Why did not you go home during the recess?" asked one of his western associates. "We need you with the committee re-organization."

"You see," replied Dixon, "Teddy Roosevelt is going to be in Montana, and I think it is a pretty good time to be home."

Which shows that there must be Roosevelt sentiment in Montana.

"It made no difference to us who was chosen as minority leader," remarked Congressman Davis, one of the insurgent members from Minnesota. "I do not see how the Republican party can be saved, and, anyway, we intend to do just as we please in regard to legislation."

TORPEDO FOR AERIAL ATTACK.

Projectile Designed by the Krupps to Explode by Contact With Aeroplane Wings.

Development in weapons of defense against aerial attack, which is endeavoring to keep pace with the rapid progress of military aeronautics, may be greatly re-inforced by a new aerial torpedo just patented in Washington by the Krupps, the German manufacturers. The new shell or torpedo is the invention of Carl Weisser and Wilhelm Schwartz. It is a projectile shot through the air and designed to explode by contact with the most fragile material, such as the outside covering of a gas bag or the wings of an aeroplane.

The new shell is believed by the inventors to be superior to the aerial torpedoes designed to explode by the operation of a time fuse. The new fuse, while susceptible to the most delicate impact, is safeguarded against the resistance of the air during its flight by intricate mechanism. The fuse has a base plug containing a pellet of fulminated mercury which when ignited sets off the explosive charge of the projectile.

Army and navy ordnance officers have not yet seen the patents, but expect to receive them. For more than a year, the Krupps have been devoting much attention to inventions designed to perate against aerial attack. The aerial torpedoes which have been developed leave a trail of smoke when fired upward, so the gunners can trace their course and see how accurately they fire.

SEEKING DOCK FACILITIES.

Sea View Road Anxious to Secure Wharf for Coal Barges in Vicinity of Wickford.

The Sea View Railroad Company is seeking dock facilities in the vicinity of Hamilton, just beyond Wickford, for the purpose of building a wharf where coal barges can discharge their cargoes. The ultimate purpose of the road is to handle the coal traffic of the South County.

The project means much to the mills and other concerns between Wickford and Westerly. If the present plans are carried out, the manufacturing plants in the southern part of the state will be able to have their coal delivered within their factory yards by trolley at a much lower cost of transportation than at present, to say nothing of the cost of carting from the railroad yards which is at present necessary in a great many cases.

The exact place where the dock will be has not been decided upon. D. F. Sherman, president of the Providence & Danielson road, which recently acquired the Sea View line, in speaking of the project, said several places had been taken into consideration. There are about 20 miles of shore from Wickford south, but the desire of the company, Mr. Sherman said, is to be as near Hamilton as possible.

"What we must have," continued Mr. Sherman, "is a dock with at least 18 feet of water in order to accommodate the coal barges from Virginia. There are a number of places, but we want to avoid going too far out in order to get the required depth of water. There is a place in the vicinity of Plum point, which is about seven miles below Hamilton, that has been suggested, but we have not looked it over as yet."

At the present time the Sea View road secures its coal for the power station from Providence, making a long haul at considerable expense. This is another reason why the company is anxious to establish a coal dock near at hand.

The power station at Hamilton is being enlarged in capacity by the addition to some of the present buildings. A new 500 horse-power boiler has just been installed and a new smokestack 135 feet high has been erected. The big turbine engine in use at the power house has been sent to the factory to be thoroughly overhauled.

The matter of securing a place to build a dock will be pushed with vigor and the company hopes to complete negotiations and begin the construction work in the near future.

—The Busy Bee Club held its first meeting Thursday evening at the home of Miss Sarah E. Brady, the president.

—Robert G. Hone has leased his house, corner of Old Beach road and Greenough place to Mrs. Berryman of New York for the coming season.

—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Harriman will sail for Europe April 13, to remain abroad six weeks. On their return they will come to Newport, to occupy their cottage on Clay street for the summer.

—It has been decided that it will be impossible to complete the final arrangements for re-opening Trinity Church on Palm Sunday, April 9. The church will be re-opened for worship on Easter day.

—The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad is erecting new station signs, in the form of supports on posts on the platforms, where they stand out with great conspicuousness. They are of good proportions and neatly painted, and each has a simple iron scroll for decorative purposes. This is the manner in which many places make electric light poles more presentable.

—Councilman Thomas E. Sherman blossomed forth in his Panama Thursday, in honor of the formal arrival of spring. That Panama looked pretty good while the sun was booming the thermometer up to 63 in the shade, but when the shades of night were falling and the temperature had a touch of March his friends began to fear it would be frostbitten. There are dangers in a too early exposure, even if this is April.

—News has been received of the death, at her New York residence, of Miss Helen Fordham Mahony, who had been a summer resident here for many years. Her father, the late John F. Mahony, was one of the early colony, owning a cottage on Bellevue avenue, at the corner of Lakeview, and was well known. Miss Mahony spent the summers in this cottage with her sister, Mrs. J. J. Post and her brother, Mr. J. H. Mahony.

After a concert by the Second District band and the regimental review there wil be special drills by the several companies.

TO CONFER ON PRICE OF GAS.

the proper thing was to advertise for what is needed, have everything on the schedule, and let the committee, if one is appointed, see the Gas company officials and learn what they will do on the articles which they supply. The incandescent light company buys gas from the Gas company, and does some things under the contract; the Gas company does other things and supplies certain materials, all of which appear on the schedule made out by the city clerk. He saw no occasion to break that up. It is not business-like, in his opinion.

There was a great deal more talk along this line, but it was voted—that is, no one objected and the vote was declared carried without opposition—to have a committee of two consult with the Gas Company officials and learn what they will do in the matter of prices, and Aldermen Mahoney and Kelley were appointed.

Then the talk was continued along the lines of omitting reference to interior lighting or open gas light from both the advertisement and the specifications. This Mayor Boyle strongly opposed, not in the interest of the Gas company but from a business point of view. Alderman Albro was the only other member who spoke, and he said he thought the committee should be given a trial.

Mayor Boyle said the committee had been appointed and it was for it to do the best it can. It would be no handicap of its efforts to have all the articles needed on the schedule. It could take the schedule to the meeting with the Gas company and talk over the items on it which come under its special province. Incidentally, he told Alderman Mahoney that when he saw the Gas company officials he would learn what the Gas company had done in the past for the city, and would know more than he did then. He was not speaking for the Gas company, simply telling him what he thought was right from the city's point of view.

The other members of the board said nothing and finally the mayor said if there was no objection the motion of Alderman Mahoney to omit certain articles from the schedule as prepared would pass, and it passed, no one voting against it.

The city clerk had changed the total number of Welsbach lights in the schedule to give a leeway in bidding, to conform to the present arrangement, which is to have all street gas lights of that style. The city clerk was authorized to advertise for bids on the rest of the schedule.

The light business being over, Mr. Mahoney said he thought some action should be taken in view of the death of City Physician Sanborn. Either the Council should be called to elect a successor or the board should temporarily fill the place, pending the meeting of the Council. Mayor Boyle thought no action necessary at present, as Dr. Sweet who did the work for Dr. Sanborn while the latter was sick, is attending to it. Mr. Mahoney said things had changed. While Dr. Sanborn was alive Dr. Sweet acted for him and at his request, and his work was authorized. With the death of Dr. Sanborn this authority ceased and to his mind it became necessary to have the vacancy properly filled, either permanently or temporarily. No one objected to this and it was voted to ask the chairman of the Representative Council to call a meeting of the Council to fill this vacancy and transact such other business as may come before it.

Chief Kirwin asked for permission to place a pole at Heath and Spruce streets for a new fire alarm box. Mayor Boyle said they were trying to reduce the number of poles and the chief knew it, but this pole was necessary for the box. He would like to have the box on Davis court, but too much pole line would be necessary and this other was the best best place. The permission was given.

While they were talking of poles, the Mayor said it looked as though a big pole near the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association building was about to come down, and Chief Kirwin said it was to come down.

The mayor also had a complaint about the fall of the Walnut Street bridge, which seemed to need repairs, and was looking for the street commissioner, to call his attention to the need of action.

Mr. Shenley said Superintendent Gosling of the Illuminating company had promised to write in relation to the proposed change of poles on Bellevue avenue, but the letter was not yet received.

The board adjourned.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The last all-day meeting for this season of the Ladies' Aid of the Christian Church was held with Mrs. Ivory P. Lowe on Glen street. The fine day drew out a company of 23, who spent the day socially, using their needles busily. At 1 o'clock dinner was served, of cold meat, hot vegetables, salmon salad, brown bread, beans, rolls, pies, cake, tea and coffee.

The first tantog of the year was caught Wednesday by Fred Lichfield and weighed about one and a half pounds.

The Sunshine Society met with Mrs. William A. Lawrence Thursday afternoon and worked on articles in preparation for a sale. Mrs. Frederick Webb assisted Mrs. Lawrence in the serving of refreshments.

The Ladies' Association of St. Paul's Church met with Mrs. John J. Borden Thursday afternoon, continuing their work for St. Elizabeth's Orphanage.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church met Thursday afternoon and evening and served an appetizing supper to a considerable number.

Mrs. Frank L. Tallman attended the convention in Providence of the Women's Relief Corps, as past president.

Mr. and Mrs. John Laikos of Fall River, who have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Jane Whaley, since Monday, returned home this morning.

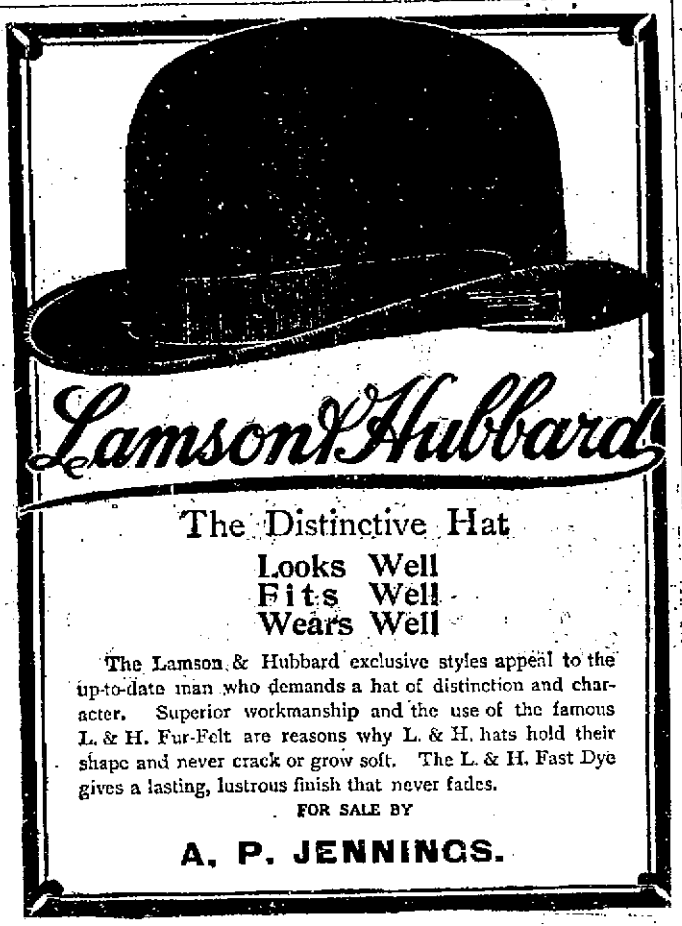

Mr. Norman Tallman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Tallman, left Attleboro today with a string of horses, for Dover, where he will train them for the race courses for the season.

John Carpenter, an electrician, while working at the Stone Bridge Hotel, fell from the piazza and badly wrenched his foot.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson A. Bishop are both confined to bed with grip and under a physician's care.

Mrs. Lucy M. Anthony, who has been spending some months in Tiverton, has returned home.

Mrs. J. Alton Barker, regent of William Ellery Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, gave the chapter an all-day thimble party this week, furnishing dinner and a pleasant social affair to the 20 present. This number would have been much larger had it not been for the heavy rain which continued throughout the day and evening. Mrs. Barker furnished conveyance from the station to her house, so that the guests experienced but slight discomfort.

MARTIN TO BE ELECTED.

His Choice for Minority Leader of Senate Conceded.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—At 1:15 p. m. today a conference of Democratic progressive Senators was adjourned and it was announced that the election this afternoon of Senator Martin of Virginia, as minority leader was conceded. Senator Newlands, it is said, will be nominated in the caucus against Mr. Martin.

WOUNDED BROUGHT TO JUAREZ.

Prisoners Taken by Federals at Casas Grandes Cared for by Escort.

EL PASO, Texas, April 7.—Eighty three wounded and a number of prisoners taken by the federals at Casas Grandes were brought into Juarez today. The wounded lay prone in box cars, but were well cared for by the escort, which numbered about 200. With the latter were two field pieces and two rapid fire guns. General Eugia Lis, recently ordered to proceed with his force from Casas Grandes to Chihuahua, is reported to have left for the latter place.

Twenty-five "soldadas" or women camp followers, who had become separated from their husbands in the federal ranks, arrived at Juarez today. They walked from Chihuahua, 150 miles, pushing a hand car that bore their meagre belongings. Where bridges were out they forded the streams, carrying the hand car.

United States Customs guards report a force of 400 insurrectos at San Ignacio, opposite Fort Hancock, east of El Paso. The appearance of this force, which it is believed is awaiting re-inforcements, has revived fears of an attack on Juarez.

Despatches from Culiacan, the capital of Sinaloa, declare two engagements have taken place near Mojolo and a number of wounded federals have been brought to Culiacan in ox carts.

Couriers from Agua Jito, near Mojolo, brought reports of an engagement, in which it was said 40 insurrectos were killed by the federal artillery. Only 150 troops are left to garrison Culiacan, and Governor Redo has been directed to maintain a defensive attitude.

OFFICIALS AT CANANEA.

Arizpe Probably in the Hands of Rebels Under Juan Cabral.

AGUA PRIETA, Mexico, April 7, via Douglass, Ariz.—All the officials of Arizpe have deft that city and fled to Cananea, according to a report received here last night. Arizpe is probably now in the hands of the rebels under Juan Cabral. The 300 federal volunteers at Arizpe are not accounted for in the report. It has been reported, however, that there has been fighting in the vicinity of Arizpe during the last few days. Arizpe is the capital of the Arizpe district. Insurrectos have also entered the camp of Las Chispas, in the Arizpe district, which is owned by Swiss. It is one of the richest camps in Sonora and sends its gold bullion on burros over land to Nogales.

ARTICLES GROSSLY IMPROPER.

Trial of "Bath Tug Trust" Postponed Because of Newspaper Reports.

DETROIT, Mich., April 7.—The trial of the government's criminal case against the so-called "Bath Tub Trust" has been postponed from the May to the June term of the federal court here, because of certain newspaper articles to which Judge Denn'son took exceptions. In announcing the postponement in court, Judge Dennison said:

"The newspapers this morning had a report purporting to be given out by the Attorney General's office in Washington, which was grossly improper and very clearly an extreme contempt. I think any such publication on the eve of the trial makes a fair trial impossible, and I shall order the case continued over the term. I have requested the Attorney General to ascertain whether any employe or assistant in his office is responsible for giving out such a report and if so, that he direct that employe to report immediately to this court.

"The publication charges in effect that the present regular panel of this court needed extraordinary watching, that watchers would be furnished, that the court was not competent to take care of its own affairs, and that some of the defendants had offered to plead guilty of course, a scandalously improper thing to be said, even if it is true. I do not think the regular panel of jurors could maintain an unprejudiced attitude toward the government after such accusations as there contained or directly implied against the jury. I am not inclined to blame the papers for the publication, although I think more care should have been exercised in connection with the publication."

WALKER-SEARS ASSAULT CASE DELAYED.

An echo of the Walker divorce case was heard in the district court today, before Judge Franklin, when the parties who figured in the alleged assault upon Richard Sears, a Boston newspaper photographer, appeared for trial. While of course it has nothing to do directly with the Walker divorce matter, it will be remembered that the trouble grew out of the attempt of the newspaper man to snap a picture of Henry P. Walker of Boston, as he was leaving the court house, where he was a witness for his brother, Civil Engineer Walker.

When Judge Franklin took his seat he found the courtroom filled. Another matter, however, preceded the assault case, that of State vs. Robert Havens, on the charge of abandoning his wife and children. The court made some inquiries and learned that there were 10 witnesses for the prosecution, mostly women, and City Solicitor Sullivan thought it would take until 1 o'clock to finish the case. It was thereupon announced that the Walker case would go on at 2:15.

The abandonment case then proceeded, Mrs. Havens testifying at length. The Havens case occupied attention during the entire morning session and was still on when the court came in at 2:30. The Walker case had not been reached when The News went to press.

THE ST. JOSEPH'S-ALGONKIN SECOND GAME.

In the first basket ball game between the St. Joseph's and the Algonkins for the benefit of the players the former won, but the Algonkins are confident that they can turn the tide of victory their way this time. Kyle and Underwood are playing a great game, as was shown when the All Stars met the Tubs. Both sides have team work down to a fine point, and make things lively for the spectators. The cup which the St. Joseph's team won in the City League will be on exhibition at the hall. This game will probably close the basket ball season in Newport.

IN MOCK SESSION.

Prominent Legislators, Including Newport Members, Grilled at Press Club Banquet.

A large majority of the members of the General Assembly, the state officers, and others connected with the capitol "family," gathered at the Crown Hotel, Providence, Thursday afternoon for the annual banquet of the State House Press Club.

The meeting was conducted in the form of a mock session of the grand committee, with the procedure enough strained to allow for the introduction of resolutions and acts directed at peculiarities which have developed during the regular Assembly session.

David J. White, reading clerk of the senate, acted as the lieutenant governor and presided over the mock session. Following the dinner, served in the large dining room of the hotel at 2:30 o'clock, the fun of the afternoon commenced. Nearly every member who has gained prominence in the legislature through some act introduced or some other action was remembered in the flood of petitions and resolutions introduced, "Lieutenant Governor" White called upon members to debate on these bills, generally picking out a man in favor of something to speak on the opposite side of the question.

Through these resolutions the insurgents were given control of the party machinery, a new state named "The State of Hudson and Pothier Plantations" was created, unlimited committee clerkships were provided for deserving relatives of members, and a "third house," consisting of the lobbyists was created, to have the last say on all legislation. Various commissions weree created to erect court houses and build salt ponds.

The Newport members did not escape the grilling, nor was that which they received less to the point than that given others.

JAMESTOWN.

Sudden Death of Roderick McDonald on His Birthday From Attack of Heart Trouble.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

Roderick McDonald, the 15-year-old son of Captain and Mrs. Roderick McDonald, died suddenly shortly after 8 o'clock Thursday evening at their home on Clinton avenue, from heart trouble. He had been seriously ill recently with diphtheria, but had so far recovered as to be able to be about the house and was planning to be out in a few days. A weakness of the heart developed, but he was not thought to be in any special danger. Being about to retire he walked up stairs, unaided, and the exertion, although he had done the same thing before, brought on an attack from which he died almost instantly.

Although still young, he had many friends, being an exceptionally bright lad. He was the only son of Captain and Mrs. McDonald and the case is exceptionally sad, as Thursday was the boy's fifteenth birthday and many of his friends had taken occasion to remember him during the day. To these his death was a severe shock, as they were counting upon only a few days more of quarantine, after which they could call upon him. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald were prostrated by their loss, coming as it did when they had every reason to expect the boy's ultimate recovery. The burial will be from necessity, private.

Mr. Percival Gibson has rented his bungalow on Grinnell street to Mr. John Swinburne of Newport for the coming season.

Mr. Clinton Machinon of Yale is visiting on the Island.

Miss Arthur Clarke was given a surprise Thursday evening when the members of the P. H. dropped in on her unannounced. They were none the less welcome and an enjoyable evening was spent at cards. Refreshments were served.

Mr. Ernest Caswell was in town today, making arrangements for putting the Bay View House in order for the season.

SUBSCRIPTION DANCE BY THE ZIONIST CLUB.

The Hotel Aquidneck was the scene Thursday evening of a subscription dance given by the Zionist Club of Newport, an organization composed of young Jewish people. The dance hall was becomingly decorated for the occasion, a feature of the scheme being an electrical fixture representing the Shield of David, the hall being darkened for some of the numbers and the company dancing by the light rays from this effect. About 100 were present, including Rabbi Lichter and other members of the congregation.

The officers of the club are: President, Joseph Josephson; vice president, Miss Marjorie Hess; secretary, Miss Ida Josephson; treasurer, Gabriel Rosen. The object is literary as well as social, meetings being held at the Synagogue each Sunday afternoon, at which Jewish problems are discussed.

The officials for the dance were Joseph Josephson, floor manager; Miss Marjorie Hess, assistant; and Miss Sophie Andriesse, Ralph Krawetz, Irvin Andriesse and Gabriel Rosen, aides. The grand march was started with Mr. Ralph Krawetz and Miss Sophie Andriesse as the leaders. Mr. Louis Andriesse prompted the march, making it the success of the evening. There were 20 dances on the program, McCloskey's Orchestra furnishing the music.

At the navy pay office this noon bids were opened by Chief Clerk Robert Long for docking, cleaning and repairing the following government boats:

No awards were announced on any of the bids. While Reed Bros. are considerably lower than the Newport Shipyard for the Restless, no time for the completion of the work was stated by them, which may affect their bid.

A CASE OF SPITE WORK.

A Bomb Explodes in Front of Building on West Forty-Fifth Street.

NEW YORK, April 7.—"What's that?" exclaimed all the Tenderloin with one voice this morning, and rushed to the street. Some one had exploded a heavy bomb in front of the basement door at 131 West Forty Fifth street, between Sixth avenue and Broadway, in the very centre of the all-night district, set thick with chop houses, lobster palaces and hotels. It was 5 o'clock and the Tenderloin was either getting its first beauty sleep or making ready for it. The terrific report jarred the whole neighborhood for 15 blocks around and the force of the explosion blew in the basement doors of the chop house and shattered all the windows.

The upper stories were tenantless and the ground floor, occupied by a furrier, was vacant at the time, so nobody was hurt, but a bomb so far from the East Side quickly drew a crowd of thousands. In the Hotel Lyceum, nearby, the telephone operator was blown from his stool and stunned by the fall. Guests who tried to learn through the house exchange what all the excitement was about received no answer and came piling down stairs in a panic.

At the Hotel Astor, across Broadway, at the Knickerbocker, three blocks down town, and the Cadillac, the clerks at the desks were kept busy answering inquiries. From various apartments scantily dressed, sleepy crowds passed onto the pavements, surveyed the damage done and went back to bed again.

The police have a theory that the case is one of spite work against the owner of the house and not an ordinary Black Hand bomb throwing.

POLICE AND STRIKERS FIGHT.

A Street Laborer Shot and Fatally Hurt in Prince Rupert, B. C.

PRINCE RUPHRT, British Columbia, April 7.—Four hundred striking street laborers engaged in a battle with the police here yesterday, following an attack upon a force of men working under police protection. During the fight Milan Michedich, a Montenegrin striker, was shot and probably fatally wounded and several other men, including two constables, were less seriously hurt. Many citizens are being sworn in as deputy constables. Many strikers have been arrested.

LEAVE FOR HOME STATIONS.

Third and Fourth Divisions of the Atlantic Fleet Finish Practice.

ON BOARD U. S. S. DOLPHIN, April 7.—Battleships Minnesota, Vermont, Mississippi and Idaho, comprising the third division of the Atlantic fleet, yesterday completed their divisional battle practice. The vessels fired upon two targets from a distance of 13,000 yards. The targets were in tow of battleship Virginia. Three hits were scored on the target screens and several more on the raft hulls.

The ships of the fourth division, the Georgia, Nebraska, Rhode Island and Virginia had their practice upon the conclusion of that of the third division. The vessels made six hits on the targets and a number on the hulls. The Georgia, leading the division, opened fire at 13,000 yards. Upon the conclusion by the fourth division the battleships gathered into three squadrons and took up night firing practice. Today the vessels will disperse to their home stations. The Dolphin left the fleet last night for Washington.

11:—A half dozen of the minor industrials responded to trading operations in a moderate fashion, but the great mass of stocks were inert. United States Rubber and the Pittsburg Coal stocks advanced 1 to 1½, and American Can preferred and Colorado Fuel large fractions. American Steel Foundries and National Biscuit lost 2 points.

Noon.—Speculative interest in the stock market dwindled steadily until there were prolonged intervals, when the ticker did not even register a sale. None of the favorite stocks varied more than ½ from their initial prices and the obscure specialties furnished the only medium for scalping profits. There was an active and higher market for bonds, with some large operations in Virginia, deferred certificates, Seaboard Air Line Adjustment fives, and Southern Railway fours. Virginia certificates jumped 4 points to 68¾, National City Bank was bid up 7 points to 442, and Associated Oil gained 2 points. Money on call, steady at 2½ per cent. New State Official Makes Annual Inspection of the Naval Reserves.

Various Drills and Exercises Conducted With Greater Success Than in Previous Years.

General Charles W. Abbot, Jr., adjutant general of the state, accompanied by Lieutenant Commander Charles N. Lawton, executive officer of the Naval Battalion, visited Newport Thursday evening and conducted the annual inspection of the Newport Naval Reserves. While it would not be becoming in the state officers to comment openly on either merits or faults noted, it was generally considered that the inspection was one of the best which has been held, and far ahead of last year's. The members of the company, however, knew this would be so beforehand, since they have been drilling more diligently than ever this year.

Adjutant General Charles W. Abbot, Jr.

On their arrival at the armory General Abbot and Lieutenant Commander Lawton were received with due military honors, and after the salute to the colors the inspection proceeded. Under the charge of Ensign Peter G. Campbell the manual of arms was executed, followed by the setting-up and bayonet exercise, under Gunner's Mate Harry L. Vayo. The infantry and street riot drill was gone through with Lieutenant Charles E. Lawton in charge. Next came the extended order drill, under Ensign Campbell, and guard mount, with Lieutenant Lawton as adjutant and Ensign Campbell as officer of the guard, this completing the inspection proper.

Retreat was then sounded and the colors lowered, while the hall was thrown into darkness to represent night, the only light being the rays from an imitation moon, which showed the sentries and men resting in proper positions. Then the lights were turned on again, the guard withdrawn and the company permitted to rest while the visiting officers witnessed a wig-wag drill by Chief Petty Officer Steed and Seaman Keeney.

WORK RESUMED.

Masons Begin Operations on the New Naval Hospital, With Six Weeks Before Them.

Work was resumed Thursday at the naval hospital on the Maitland land. It was stopped last winter, when the weather began to get cold, and Thursday about 20 masons reported for duty. The walls were found in as good condition as when operations ceased, showing the quality of the work done to be up to the standard. There is something like six weeks more for the bricklayers on the hospital building proper, though the exterior walls are nearly done.

Besides the hospital, the plans call for a garage, laundry, stable and houses for the doctors. Whether contracts will be awarded for this work at once is not known, but they form part of the plan for the establishment, and of course are necessary as well as the hospital building proper. When all are up there will be quite a little village of buildings on the reservation. The hospital itself is a big building and covers a great deal of land.

CRANE DEFEATS RUSSELL.

Wins Final Tennis Match in Boston and Will Meet Jay Gould for Championship.

Joshua Crane, Jr., of the Tennis and Racquet Club and formerly champion of the United States, easily defeated C. T. Russell, of the Boston Athletic Association, in the final round of the championship court tennis tournament at the Tennis and Racquet Club, Boston, Thursday afternoon. Mr. Crane won from Mr. Russell in three straight sets, 6—2, 6—3 and 6—1.

By winning this match Mr. Crane will be the player to meet Jay Gould, the present holder of the championship in a game on Saturday afternoon. The match between Mr. Gould and Mr. Crane it is believed, will be the best yet played in this country. Mr. Gould has watched every game this week, and he is said to be confident that he can retain his title.

UNDER THE NEW SYSTEM.

Statement of Detailed Receipts and Expenditures of the City.

Second Section of the Treasurer's Report Shows Some Surprising Groupings.

The second section of the annual report of the city treasurer, given herewith, shows the detailed receipts and expenditures of the year, arranged accordingly to the classification of the new accounting system. Perhaps a study of the accounts and the groupings will give a better idea of the system on which the accounts are now kept and classified than any description. Many will question the classification, but probably no two would make exactly the same. Just why water supply should come under the head of City Hall general offices, and not under the heading of public safety, or highways, or divided among the three, is a question which cannot well be answered. There are other question which will suggest themselves. Why are education and recreation grouped? They are not so grouped in the census report.

It will be noted that there are many items marked "capital account." These are charges or credits for things which are considered permanent. Permanent improvements to streets and highways, permanent additions to the fixtures of any of the offices or departments are considered as capital accounts and not as current expenses. There is here a difference not before noted in the keeping of city accounts. This is in addition to the several new divisions of the accounts under the census headings. It will be seen that several groupings in the tables are made up from different city departments; the heading public sanitation includes items under the highway department, the Board of Health and the Park Commission. Under public celebrations and recreations are items from the accounts of the School Committee, Park Commission, highway department, Board of Aldermen and the Council direct. A careful study of the figures will show pretty generally where the money came from and where it went.

THAYER-WARREN.

Quiet Ceremony Performed at Home of Bride's Mother in Boston Before Relatives Only.

Because of recent deaths in the Thayer family, those of Mr. Nathaniel Thayer and Mrs. Eugene V. R. Thayer, the marriage of Miss Katharine Lee Bayard Warren, daughter of Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, to Mr. John E. Thayer, Jr., was a simple one. The ceremony was performed in the home of the bride's mother by Rev. Samuel A. Eliot.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with family lace and a veil of lace. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was Miss Helen Sears, daughter of Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears. Miss Sears wore pale blue silk with a white hat and white plumes and carried rambler roses. Mr. Roger Amory, one of Mr. Thayer's classmates at Harvard, was his best man. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Samuel D. Warren.

The floral decorations were chiefly rhododendrons, although the breakfast table was filled with spring flowers. At the ceremony and the breakfast there was not more than 100 persons, and most of these were relatives.

Mr. Thayer and his bride will go to Europe by the Amerika, of the Hamburg-American line, which will leave New York tomorrow.

HIGH SCHOOL BASE BALL.

The Rogers High School base ball team played a practice game with the Athletics, a local team, Thursday, and was defeated by a score of 15-6 in eight innings. There were many changes in the high schol line-up and the veterans were not put into the game until the fifth inning. The new men did some poor fielding, but many came to the front in batting. The team will be picked by the first of next week and will then settle down to hard practice for the first game, which will be against the Cloyne School team, which the high school boys are desirous of defeating, to atone for last year's defeat. It is thought that the team with a few exceptions will be composed of last year's men, as the new candidates have not been able to displace the veterans. The team will be coached by Mr. Jones of Fort Adams, who is a good all-round player and has an intimate knowledge of the game.

MANY EMPLOYES LAID OFF.

William B. Manuel One of Those to Suffer in New Haven Road Retrenchment.

[Fall River News.]

A wholesale curtailment by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in and around their wharf property at the shore is the cause for much concern and considerable comment among the many employes who work around the docks. Following out the policy adopted in times of slack business and a general freight depression, the railroad company is engaged in the dismissal of a number of yard clerks, office help and minor employes about the docks.

The present situation is serving to place the entire working force in a state of uncertainty and each one is anxiously awaiting the outcome. Only last Saturday, William B. Manuel, foreman of pier 3, one of the oldest employes in point of service about the docks, who has seen 36 years' service under the railroad company, was dismissed on account of the slack period that is now approaching.

Of the 20 or more clerks employed in the office of the Boston freighthouse, the majority are at present preparing themselves to take civil service examinations in order to secure other positions. With the large number of employes gradually leaving the service of the railroad company and no one being hired to replace them it has become necessary in many instances for the old hands to double up in order to keep abreast of the work.

Another idea that has been inaugurated at the Boston freighthouse, and which is along the lines of the wholesale curtailment, is to have the freighthouse closed between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock daily.

AWARDED TO CASEY.

Contract for Care of Parks Goes to Last Year's Holder, Two Votes to One for Hammond.

The Park Commission held an adjourned meeting Thursday afternoon, Chairman Shepley and Messrs. Powel and Gardner being present. The matter of the contract for the care of the parks was taken up and Mr. Powel moved to award the contract to Patrick Casey, who had it last year, at his bid of $2,625. Mr. Gardner said he would not second this, and instead moved that it be given to John P. Hammond, at his bid of $3,500. Messrs. Shepley and Powel voted for Casey and the contract was awarded to him.

Joan Waters was again selected to have charge of the public convenience on the Mall.

Chairman Shepley was authorized to secure two flags, for the Soldiers and Sailors lot and for Battery park; also to have signs, "no dumping," placed at the new section of King park and on the Marchant Street park.

Mayor Boyle was asked Thursday evening what action he proposed taking to fill the vacancy on the Park Commission caused by the resignation of Mr. Hammond, and replied that there was no hurry about filling the vacancy.

TO CONFER ON PRICE OF GAS.

Aldermen Mahoney and Kelly to Talk With the Company's Officials.

Representative Council Asked to Fill the Vacancy in Office of the City Physician.

There was something in the way of talk at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen Thursday evening, but the discussion was not general, Mayor Boyle and Alderman Mahoney doing all the talking. Mr. Mahoney desired to omit from the advertisement and specifications for a renewal of the contracts for interior and street lighting all reference to what the Newport Gas Light Company would bid on. Instead, he wished a committee appointed to see the company, and learn if something could not be done to reduce the cost of lighting, not only to the city but to the citizens as well. Mayor Boyle did not oppose the appointment of such a committee, thinking it might accomplish something; at least, it could try. He did oppose taking out the reference to articles which the Gas company might supply, holding that business demands the advertising of all the articles required by the city. However, after a good deal of talk, Alderman Mahoney's motion prevailed, because no one opposed it.

Mr. Mahoney moved to have the Representative Council called to fill the vacancy caused by the death of City Physician Sanborn, or to have the board temporarily fill the vacancy, and it was voted to ask the chairman of the Council to call a special meeting for this purpose.

Mayor Boyle presided and all the members were present.

The regular pay rolls were approved for the following sums: Streets and highways, $1,087.36; police, $801.76; fire department, $503.93; city officers, $285.01; firemen in theatres, $48.

The chief engineer had something to say about the firemen in theatres bills and about money being available, and Mayor Boyle said the Council would soon meet and matters might be cured for. There was also reference to the resolution of the Council for the payment of such firemen, but it was all an indefinite sort of talk which did not directly say the city was having the short end of the deal.

Bills of George Martin, $149.47, and A. J. Kirwin, $10.13, against the fire department, were approved.

Renewals of licenses were made as follows: Tavern, to Kiernan & Sheehan, J. V. Jordan and D. J. Walsh; eating house, to Maude E. Fleetwood, Mary Downes, Tobin & Bradley, Egan & Burke and Patrick J. Sullivan; junk shop, to Abraham Solomon and Wulf Smith; junk gatherer, to Wulf Smith. A transfer of a junk shop license was given Ruben Mirman from Brown & Howard's wharf to Davis court.

An invitation was received from the United Irish Societies of Newport to attend a lecture April 24 for the benefit of the Gaelic League fund in Ireland, Rev. Father O'Flanagan and Fionan MacColum will lecture on the Gaelic language. The invitation was accepted.

Then came the matter of advertising for bids for supplying street and interior lighting, the contracts for which expire May 1. The city clerk had prepared an advertisement calling for bids in accordance with the forms used for years and the specifications were similar to those last used, the various items being specified.

Alderman Mahoney suggested, in view of the fact that the Newport Gas Light Company would be the only bidder on some of the items, that it seemed useless to advertise the articles which it alone could supply, and he thought a committee should be appointed to see the officers of the company and learn what it would do in the matter of prices. The conditions are similar to those in connection with the Telephone company. It might be that the committee could secure something in the way of better terms by such a call. As he understood it, the city is paying the same rate as private individuals. The Gas Company has not paid any franchise tax, though it has been enjoying the privileges of the streets for years.

He thought perhaps a reduction in the price of gas to the citizens generally might be secured. In Chicago a reduction of price to 70 cents had been secured; why should not Newport have dollar gas? It could not be expected that any other company would come here to compete with the Gas company for the short term a contract would run, so that there is no competition on the articles which the Gas company supplies. He had this limited to interior gas light and common gas lights in streets.

Mayor Boyle said the common gas light in the streets is a thing of the past. He expected that the next bids would show a material reduction in the cost of mantle lights, so that there would be no talk of any more common gas lights in the streets. There are, however, many things on which the Gas company bids not mentioned by Aldermen Mahoney. To his mind
